47 Proposals For Safer Vehicles 'To Save Life, Limb'

Washington (AP) — The government, accelerating its motor vehicle safety program, announced Thursday 47 proposals for safety standards to become effective in 1969 and beyond.

Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd said the agency's new standards "will unquestionably save thousands of lives and prevent or reduce the seriousness of tens of thousands of injuries."

But he added: "We don't expect miracles overnight."

Among the proposals are 10 standards which would become effective Jan. 1, 1969. They call for:

—New devices to hold small children in their seats.

—Performance standards for brake linings on autos, trucks, buses, motorcycles and trailers.

—Warning signals for vehicles stopped for emergencies.

—Auto hoods which don't open inadvertently.

—Mountings to keep windshields from popping out in auto crashes. This is to keep people from being thrown out.

—Radiator caps that are safe to open.

—Motorcycle protective devices such as roll bars, footrests and exhaust system covers.

—Elimination of outside protrusions on vehicles. This is to protect pedestrians and cyclists struck by the vehicles.

—"Fail-safe" reliability standards for headlight covers and movable headlights.

—Vehicle identification or serial numbers which are easily visibile.

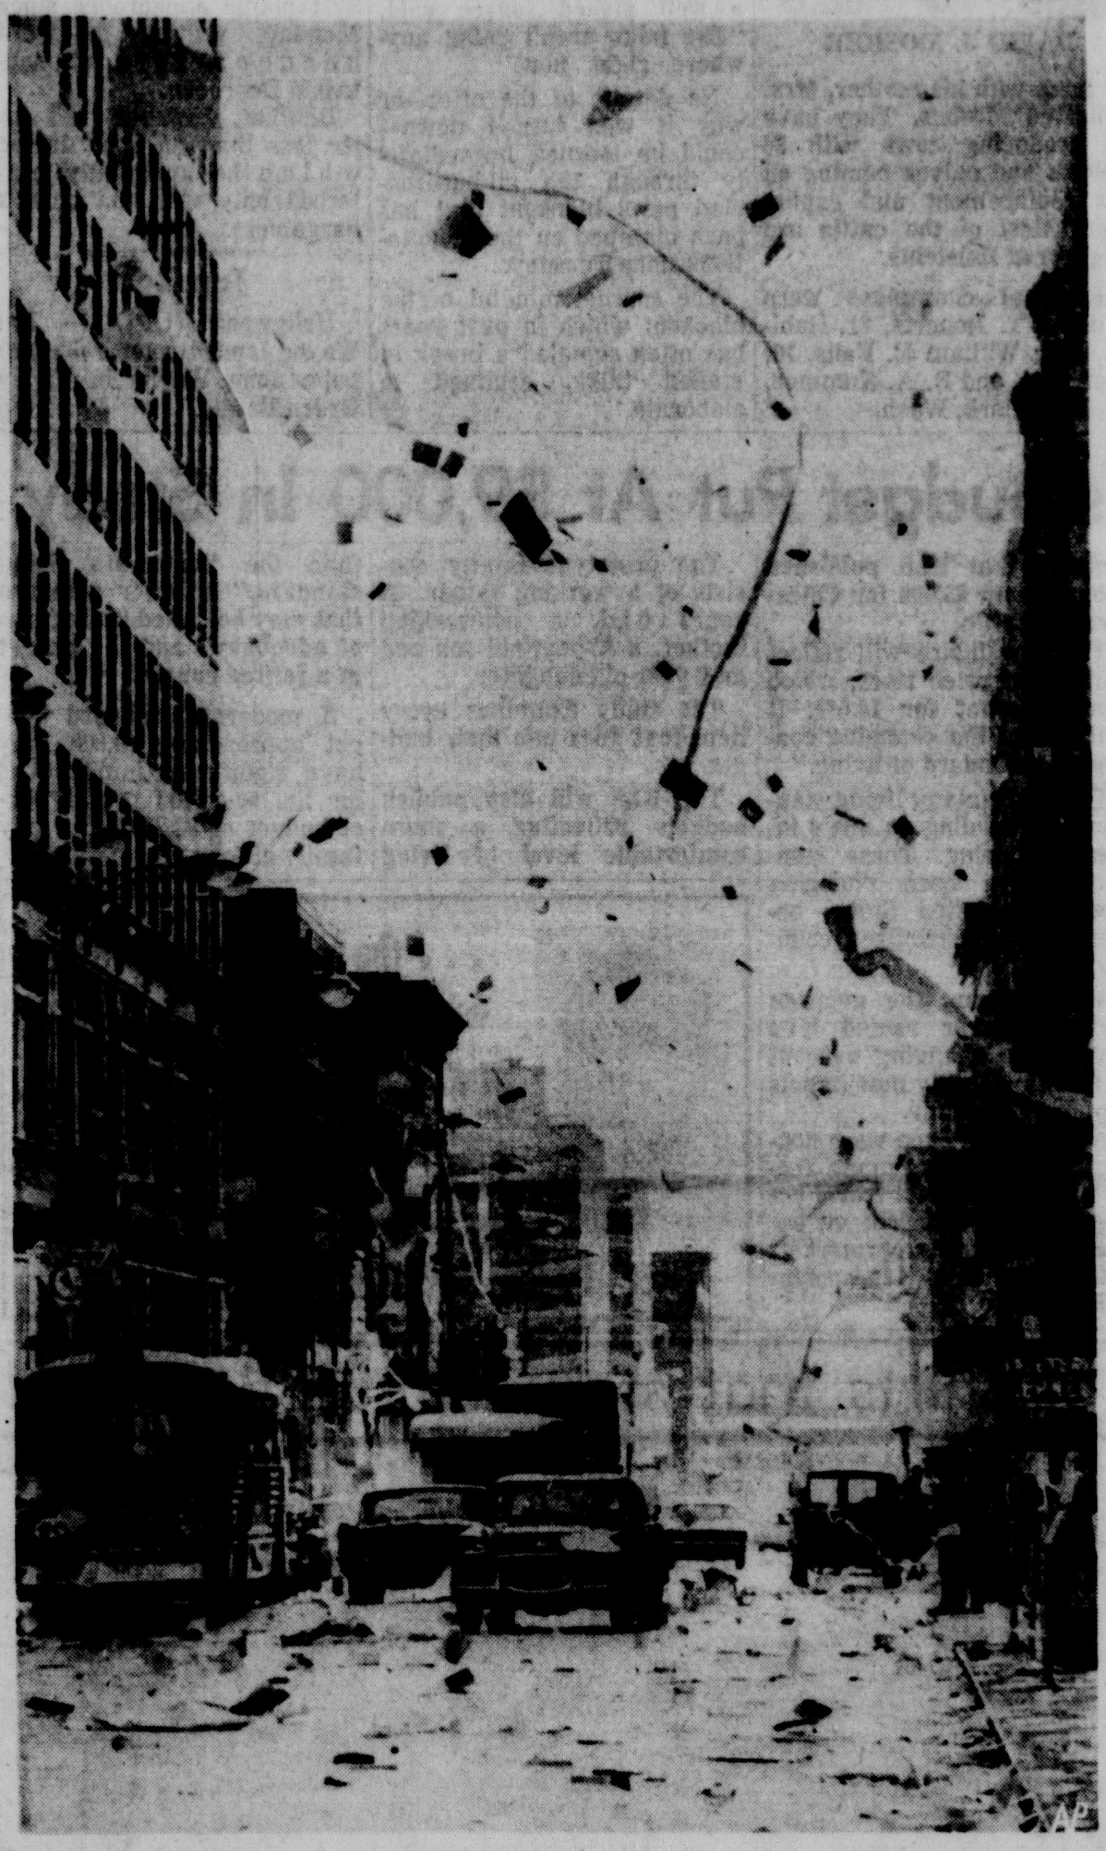
Earlier this year the department announced standards which are to be included on vehicles made after Dec. 31. These include collapsible steering wheel assemblies, lap and cross-chest seatbelts, dual braking systems and other devices to protect occupants.

Six other new standards now being processed are to become effective Jan. 1, 1969. These call for head rests and affect lights, door locks, defrosting systems, and windshield wiping and washing.

Two others, to become effective early next year, affect passenger car tires and rims.

The proposed standard for restraining children goes beyond earlier standards which require seatbelts for chilren up to 50 pounds who can sit upright by themselves. The new standard would require rearward-facing infant seats, forward-facing infant seats and portable cribs and playpens.

Among the other proposals for new standards or amendments would be requirements for maximum speed control, or governors, and fire resistance in vehicle interiors and in fuel tanks and lines.



EL BIRDOS' VICTORY BRINGS BLIZZARD

The St. Louis Cardinals' 7-2 victory over the Red Sox in Thursday's deciding seventh World Series game triggered a paper blizzard in downtown St. Louis. Computer cards, insurance application forms, toilet paper—anything that could safely be thrown from a tall building window—filled the air and piled up a foot deep in some places. (More on Pages 17, 18.)

New Superintendent Labeled 'Proven Educational Leader'

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln's new superintendent of schools has "unusual ability to get things done in a quiet way with the cooperation of many individuals," board of education President Ed Copple said Thursday.

Announcing the selection of John Prasch, 48, of Minneapolis, Minn., to succeed Supt. Dr. Steven N. Watkins, Copple declared that Prasch "has proven not by word but by deed that he is an educational leader.

"He has been able to get an esprit de corps among the teaching and administrative staff, to inspire teachers and to interpret the programs to the public."

Varied Experience

Prasch, who will resign his position as director of the Upper Midwest Regional Educational Laboratory effective Dec. 1 to start his work here, is a former Racine, Wis., school superintendent, high school principal, math teacher and coach.

Work with the laboratory, he said, "has provided an excellent opportunity to broaden my base of contacts among educators and to become conversant with new fronts."

Commenting on his move to Lincoln, Prasch noted that "it has been stimulating to participate in the exciting work of creating a new kind of educational institution dedicated to research.

Most Strategic

"In the long run, however, the most strategic position of educational leadership rests with local boards of education and superintendents of schools.

"I am therefore, pleased with this opportunity to return to the operational main stream of education," he declared.

Married and the father of three children, Prasch and his wife visited Lincoln together for interviews with the board. He later spent another weekend here with board members, according to Copple.

Interviews

Five school board members traveled to Racine, Wis., to interview the former superintendent's educational complex, a consolidation of 27 separate school districts.

The Lincoln officials conducted interviews with Racine school board members, teachers, principals, school administrators, the newspaper publisher, business and civic leaders and the "man on the street," Copple said.

"We couldn't get anyone to say anything bad about him," he added.

No Unions

Noting that his relationship with the school staff was "quite close," Copple pointed out that although teachers unions surround the Racine district, there is no union of Racine teachers.

While in Lincoln, Prasch indicated that the superintendency would be a "wonderful opportunity" because he considered the Capital City to be an "educationally-oriented town," according to the board president.

Prasch was not available for further comment.

"He sees the system as offering an opportunity to be a leader in education and to innovate," Copple said.

REPAIR DOCKS HIT

CRITICS ON GRIDDLE...

Fulbright Object Of Hot Rusk Talk

Washington (AP) — Abandoning his usual calm, Secretary of State Dean Rusk turned vigorously Thursday on critics of the administration's Vietnam policy—particularly Sen. J. W. Fulbright.

"I would say that it is not true," Rusk said of one contention by the Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: that the United States is not really trying very hard to get the United Nations into a Vietnam peacemaking role.

Rusk said the Communists are barring a U.N. role and that Hanoi is not interested in negotiating. Nonetheless Rusk pronounced himself "encouraged by progress toward peace in South Vietnam" through military operations, pacification and internal political advances.

Volleys

The secretary of state fired his defensive volleys in an unusually long news conference—nearly an hour—beginning with a prepared 900-word "brief comment on the current public discussion of Vietnam."

Combined with House Speaker John McCormack's recent denunciation of congressional critics of President Johnson's Vietnam course, Rusk's meeting with newsmen appeared to be part of an administration campaign. Besides, the State Department's head was reported personally fed up with much of the antiwar talk on Capitol Hill.

With what sometimes sounded like rising temper, Rusk had some tart responses to questions concerning Vietnam policy critics outside Congress.

Unafraid Of Intellectuals

"I have great respect for intellectuals, but I don't feel that I'm intimidated by them," Rusk, once a professor, said when a reporter asked about "intellectual critics of the war" including former administration aides Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and Roger Hilsman.

Of the many foreign ministers at the U.N. General Assembly opening who called for a halt in the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, Rusk said he has found none who would change his attitude on U.S. policy if Washington did halt the air attacks.

He steered clear of naming any individual senator but his targets were obvious. And he hinted not too subtly that some critics do not seem to know what they are talking about.

"People at least should make it clear whether they are arguing with Washington or with Hanoi," he said.

Hanoi Double-Talk

"When people talk about a pause in the bombing, they should know that Hanoi calls a pause an 'ultimatum.' When a senator says that he wants to stop the bombing but, of course, wishes to continue to bomb in support of our Marines south of the demilitarized zone, he should know that Hanoi categorically rejects any such notion.

"When people say "negotiate now' they should know that the President would meet with Ho Chi Minh and other chiefs of state concerned, tomorrow.

"Literally dozens of proposals made by ourselves, other governments or groups of governments have been rejected by Hanoi."

No Problem

Rusk saw no problem with the proposal by South Vietnamese President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu, for a week's bombing pause to get Hanoi into negotiations. He said the difficulty lies with Hanoi's rejection of this type of offer, including Johnson's Sept. 29 proposition.

Johnson, in a San Antonio, Tex., speech, offered a bombing halt if that would bring about "productive discussions" with the Reds.

Rusk said Viet Cong defections are double this year over last, local Viet Cong recruitment has dropped in half, South Vietnamese army desertions are down sharply and areas under government control have expanded greatly.

Kenney Elected By State Hospital Unit

James W. Kenney of Hastings, administrator of the Mary Lanning Memorial Hospital, Thursday was named president-elect of the Nebraska Hospital Association during its annual meeting here.

Eugene G. Edwards of Lincoln assumed the duties of president for 1967-68, succeeding Spencer Brader of Omaha, executive director of Immanuel, Inc. Administrator of Bryan Memorial Hospital, Edwards was elected last year.

Kenney will head the association for the 1968-69 year.

Elected vice president was William P. Ryan, executive director of Creighton Memorial St. Joseph Hospital in Omaha.

Other new officers include secretary, W. Robert Brungard, administrator of Lincoln General Hospital, and trustee, Sister Paschala, administrator of St. Catherine Hospital in McCook.

Ten hospital-related organizations also are meeting during the three-day hospital association convention.

The Nebraska Society of Hospital Pharmacists elected Daniel Burns of Archbishop Bergan Mercy Hospital in Omaha president for the 1967-68 year.

The group also named Kenneth Tharp of Dodge County Hospital in Fremont, vice president; Kyle Taylor of Archbishop Bergan Mercy Hospital in Omaha, secretary, and William Barnes of University of Nebraska Hospital in Omaha, treasurer.

A movement to change procedures so that pharmacists would give intraveneous drugs in a hospital also received consideration by the pharmacists' society.

Manufacturing, hospital pharmacy and administration were represented in a panel discussion of current and future problems of hospital pharmacy by Louis P. Jeffrey of Roche Laboratories, Herbert C. Carlin of the University of Illinois, and Ray Rodgers of Archbishop Bergan Mercy Hospital.

Frances E. Fisher, of Cleveland, Ohio, speaker of the House of Delegates of the American Dietetic Association told some 50 Nebraska dieticians about the progress in dietetics during recent years.

New concepts in dietary practice including such programs as "five meals a day," "meals on wheels," and the nutritionist as a member of the public health team also were reviewed.

Other groups holding association conventions include the Nebraska Hospital Auxiliaries, American Association of Hospital Accountants, Nebraska Association of Nurse Anesthetists, Nebraska Association of Medical Records Librarians, Nebraska Chaplains Association, Nebraska Society of Medical Technologists and Nebraska Physical Therapy Association.

Main Haiphong Facility Spared

... NAVY JETS DROP BOMBS

Saigon (AP)—U.S. Navy jets sweeping in from two carriers blasted shipyard facilities and a barge manufacturing plant in Haiphong Thursday for the first time in the war.

The raids against targets previously on the Pentagon's restricted list were part of a massive U.S. air effort to strangle the key port, North Vietnam's biggest.

Cut Supply Lines

The aim is to cut roads and bridges leading from the city and to destroy waterborne and other craft on which military supplies can be moved to Communist troops in South Vietnam.

Navy pilots reported direct hits on drydocks and buildings of a shipyard 1.6 miles from Haiphong's center and heavy damage to the second boatyard 1.2 miles west of the center. The main docks were not hit.

One shipyard was on the main Cua Cam River that runs into Haiphong harbor. It alone was rated capable of handling five per cent of North Vietnam's ship repairing capacity, with one dry dock and a barge manufacturing plant and 37 support buildings.

Key Target

The U.S. spokesman said this was the key target because it was the largest and also contained the barge manufacturing plant.

There were no reports from the U.S. command of American plane losses in the raids, but Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency claimed two jet planes were shot down by ground fire in Haiphong.

U.S. spokesmen said that in heavy raids around Haiphong, Navy pilots also made repeated strikes on the Cat Bi airfield, capable of handling Communist MIG interceptors, and on the city's army barracks. The airfield is four miles southeast of the center of Haiphong; the barracks is three miles south of the heart of the city, North Vietnam's key port.

Recent raids have cut the four big bridges withing Haiphong and blasted fuel dumps, a military compound and the MIG base on the outskirts in the campaign to restrict the dispersal of war supplies shipped into the port and to cripple its defenses.

A4 Skyhawk and F8 Crusader pilots from the carrier Oriskany reported heavily damaging one of the shipyards, located 1.6 miles northwest of the center of Haiphong.

6,000-Foot Smoke

Pilots reported direct hits on the drydocks and surrounding support buildings and said smoke hung over the area to 6,000 feet.

The Navy said complete damage assessment was impeded by clouds over the area.

The Cat Bi airfield and the sprawling army barracks complex were hit for the first time in the war earlier this week. Both had been on the list of restricted targets.

No Damage Assessment

There was no immediate bomb damage assessment in the latest strikes, which were night raids by A6 Intruder pilots from the carrier Constellation.

Russian-built missiles and helicopters are crated and assembled in the military compound which contains about 70 army barracks and other buildings. It is between Haiphong and the MIG airfield at Cat Bi.

It was believed that Soviet technicians work in the army complex. The complex was hit in pre-dawn raids last Monday and Tuesday by the all-weather Intruder jets. Pilots said at the time that flames from the burning military base could be seen 20 miles away.

So. Omahan Would KO Sales And Income Taxes

Omaha (AP)—John M. Graff, a South Omaha tire wholesaler announced Thursday he will launch a petition drive to knock out the sales and income tax and return the state property tax to Nebraska.

"We must show the Legislature and state officials that they can't operate with a free hand. They're tax nuts down there," Graff said.

His announced plans came a day after the income tax rate for the first year was set at 10% of the federal tax liability and Gov. Norbert Tiemann said the sales tax rate would no doubt have to go up to 3% by 1969.

Graff said his attorney is drawing up a petition form which he hopes will accomplish his entire purpose. His idea is to write into the State Constitution provisions banning the state from the sales and income tax fields and to repeal an amendment adopted in 1966 which banned the state property tax.

Under state law it would take signatures of 48,640 persons to place an initiative proposal on the ballot. In addition the petitions must include 5% of the voters in each of 38 counties.

The filing deadline for the November, 1968 election is July 5, 1968.

"The state ran for 100 years without a sales or income tax and I think it can go for another 100 years without them," Graff said.

He said he objects to the "open end" income tax which permits the state to set "any rate it wants." He added that in his travels he finds more opposition to the income tax, scheduled to go into effect next January, than to the sales tax.

Rusk Sees Mortal Peril In Reneging In Asia

(C) New York Times News Service

Washington — In the face of widening congressional and public criticism of the Johnson administration's policies in Vietnam, Secretary of State Dean Rusk held a news conference to warn that if the United States abandoned its pledges to South Vietnam and other nations in Southeast Asia, it would "subject this country to moral danger." Rusk took a hard line during the 55-minute meeting with reporters and argued American interests were at stake in Vietnam because of the threat Communist China posed to non-Communist nations over the next decade. (More on Page 1)

Klan Planned, Executed 3 Civil Rights Murders

. . . KEY FEDERAL WITNESS TESTIFIES

Meridian, Miss. (AP)—A key witness took the stand Thursday and told a federal court jury his story of how three civil rights workers were trapped and killed by Ku Klux Klansmen.

James E. Jordan, 41, a former Meridian resident, said the imperial wizard of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan later complimented those involved for a job well done.

The three men, said Jordan, were delivered to the Klan crew by Chief Deputy Cecil Price of Neshoba County, who had arrested them on a speeding charge.

FBI Protection

Jordan—who has been living under FBI protection in Georgia—told how the Klan crew was organized, went to Philadelphia, waited for the three men to be released from jail that night and killed them on June 21, 1964.

The men were taken down a dirt road off Miss. 19, said Jordan, and shot to death. He said he didn't see the actual shooting because he had been posted at the highway as a guard.

Jordan said when he heard the shots he ran down the dirt road to the group and heard someone say, "You better pick up your shells." The three bodies were crumpled beside the road, he said.

The bodies were then taken to a wooded area where, after an angry and anxious wait, a bulldozer operator arrived and buried them deep in an earthen dam, said Jordan.

'Taken Care Of'

"Then we were told to go home and get out of there, everything would be taken care of," Jordan added.

The victims were Michael Schwerner, 24, a Brooklyn social worker before coming to Meridian; Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York, who had just arrived the night before to assist in the civil rights work, and James Chaney, 22, a Meridian Negro.

The 18 men on trial are charged with conspiracy to violate the civil rights of the three who were slain. That's the stiffest federal charge applicable in the case. No state charge was filed.

Maximum punishment possible under the old Reconstruction era law is 10 years and a $5,000 fine.

He eventually decided to tell the FBI about it, said Jordan, because "they said they would help me get out of town, which they did."

Money From FBI

The FBI gave him $3,000 to buy a car and rent a trailer to move his family, the ex-Klansman continued, and for the next year gave him $100 a week.

Jordan said that after a year he got a job paying $55 a week and the FBI reduced its weekly payment to $25.

Earlier, a "titan" of the Klan, the Rev. Delmar Dennis, 27, of Meridian, said the Klan had passed a death sentence on Schwerner. He was the second to testify that Schwerner had been a marked man for several days before he was killed.

The Rev. Mr. Dennis testified he joined the Klan in March 1964. Afterward, he said, he began making reports to the FBI and had been paid about $5,000 a year for the past three years.

102 U.S. GIs Die In Week

Saigon (AP)—A general slackening of the Vietnam war in the demilitarized zone area and other American-guarded sectors was reflected by a decline in U.S. casualties last week to their lowest point in two months.

The U.S. command said Thursday 102 Americans were killed in action, 890 were wounded and 26 were missing or captured, compared with 150 killed, 1,758 wounded and three missing in the week of Sept. 24-30.

Allied combat dead, however, totaled 375, against 297 in the previous week and the enemy death toll also was reported up.

The U.S. command said 1,331 of the Viet Cong and their North Vietnamese allies were killed, against a readjusted figure of 1,100 for the week before.

South Vietnamese military spokesmen reported 254 of their men were killed, more than double the 114 of the previous week. The other allies listed 19 dead, down 14.

Unofficial tabulations show 13,745 Americans have been killed, 87,525 wounded and 782 missing or captured in the war since 1961.

The Pentagon reported there were 29 deaths last week from such nonhostile causes as accidents and illness, increasing the toll in that category to 2,734.

Vietnam Chief Will Invite Ho To Talk Peace

Saigon (UPI)—South Vietnamese President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu will send a letter to Ho Chi Minh inviting the North Vietnamese president to peace talks after Thieu's inauguration, the government said Thursday.

A spokesman said Thieu would also propose a week-long bombing pause in the Vietnam war "if Hanoi's answer is favorable."

The spokesman said Thieu would send the letter to the North Vietnamese president through diplomatic channels, through a public announcement and through third nations. He said the letter might be sent through the International Control Commission.

South Vietnam's new senate Thursday debated an appeal to the government for amnesty for political prisoners, some of whom were arrested years ago for anti-government demonstrations.

66 Killed As Plane Hits Sea

Nicosia, Cyprus (AP)—Cruising at 29,000 feet in clear weather, a British-Cypriot Comet jetliner plunged suddenly into the Mediterranean off the Turkish coast Thursday, carrying 66 persons to their deaths.

After rescue craft at the scene had pulled up bodies and wreckage, the British European Airways announced there were no survivors among the 59 passengers and crew of seven.

The airline said four passengers were Americans. It identified them as N. Peters of Elizabeth, N.J.; Fotiris Georgiou, 23, an American whose parents live on Cyprus; W. Sharis, believed from Fairfax, Va., and M. P. O'Brian who boarded the plane in London.

The Comet was operated by British European Airways for Cyprus Airways and was on a flight from London to Nicosia.

The only indication that the passengers had any warning of trouble came from Turkish air patrols. Turkish pilots reported seeing some bodies in the water with lifejackets.

FFA Picks Youth, 19, For Honor

DAVID J. MOSHER

Kansas City, Mo. (AP)—David J. Mosher of Greenwich, N.Y., who began helping operate a dairy farm at 14, after his father died, was named Star Farmer of America Thursday night.

The ruddy-cheeked, stocky Mosher was the second New York youth in a row to win the honor from the Future Farmers of America.

"I never thought I'd do it," the 19-year-old youth said when notified he had won over three other regional champions at the 40th annual national FFA convention.

Mosher's father died in 1962, and David runs a 218-acre dairy farm with his mother, Mrs. Winifred Mosher. They have 57 producing cows with 36 heifers and calves coming on for replacement and expansion. Most of the cattle are registered Holsteins.

Regional champions were William T. Roberts, 21, Hahira, Ga.; William E. Falls, 19, Stet, Mo., and R. A. Kummer, 22, Deer Park, Wash.

'Generous' Ford Offer Is Rejected By UAW

Detroit (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union has rejected a new contract offer by the strikebound Ford Motor Co. and efforts to end a 36-day strike are deadlocked, The Associated Press learned Thursday night.

"The offer was generous," a well placed source said. "The talks aren't going anywhere right now."

No details of the offer—or why it was turned down—could be learned immediately through the all-but-ironclad news blackout that has been clamped on the negotiations since Tuesday.

The source, mindful of the blackout which in past years has often signaled a break in stalled talks, declined to elaborate.

The report temporarily cooled hopes a settlement was imminent.

Such hopes, first raised when both sides imposed the blackout, were buoyed briefly earlier Thursday when a beaming Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, made his first public appearance since Monday, visiting the Ford headquarters at suburban Dearborn.

Reuther, however, left after less than an hour during which he apparently conferred only with the union's bargainers.

City Worker's Budget Put At $9,000 In Study

New York Times Service

Washington — A new government study of living standards and costs reportedly puts a city worker's family budget in a range running close to $9,000.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, however, would not confirm that or any other figure, though it did acknowledge the study had been made and probably would be published next month.

Printing delays are the ostensible reason for repeated postponement of publication.

The budget that the BLS will unveil deals with one of four "moderate living standards" it has been studying. It has nothing to do with the "minimum health and decency" budget it used to publish.

The 1959 "moderate city budget" that BLS published ranged from $5,600 for Chicago and Seattle.

The new figure will reflect more than price rises, which alone account for 14.5%. It will reflect the changing concept of "standard of living."

There are many living standards, depending on one's income grouping. These standards have been changing since the United States became an industrialized country.

At one time, the average factory worker rented his home. The changing concept of family stability now impels him to buy a home.

Automobiles once were nonessentials. Today, many factory workers cannot travel between home and job, or between home and supermarket, without private transportation.

The prototype family consists of a working father, 38 years old, a nonworking mother, a 13-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter.

The study examines every item that goes into their budget.

The BLS will also publish budgets reflecting a more comfortable level of living than the "moderate living standard," a lower standard that may be called "minimum of adequacy" and the budget of a retired couple.

A moderate standard budget approaching $9,000 may have significant implications for the so-called poverty-level budget of $3,200 for a city family of four.

Omaha Police Seeking Man Who Took $350 From Bank

Omaha (UPI) — Police Thursday night were seeking a tall grey-haired man who earlier in the afternoon took $350 from the Center Bank at 42nd and Center Sts. here.

The suspect was described by authorities as a white male between 55 and 60 years of age.

Bank teller Carrie Polisi, 27, said, "At first I thought he was just another customer."

She said he walked up to her window about 3:10 p.m. and asked for 10 twenties, 10 tens and 10 fives.

Miss Polisi said, "He had his billfold out and I thought he was cashing a check." She said she counted out the money but hesitated when she noticed that nothing was being offered in exchange.

She told detectives that as she started to retrieve the currency, the man grabbed it and quietly said he was taking it and then advised her not to "push any buttons."

Miss Polisi said there was no weapon mentioned and there was no note or other instructions given.

She said he glanced over his shoulder as he slowly walked into the arcade area, and she didn't trip the alarm button until he reached the exit.

Several policemen, who were on the scene moments later, could find no one in the arcade or nearby shops who could recall seeing anyone matching the suspect's description.

Seen Waiting

Another teller, Mrs. Lois Collins, 24, told police she first noticed the man standing several feet from the counter while Miss Polisi waited on a woman customer.

She said, "I asked him if I could help him, but he just nodded toward Carrie. I thought maybe he was a friend of hers."

Bank president Ray Stanley of Elkhorn said he was in his office at the rear of the bank and was not aware of the holdup.

Catholics Told Schools Need To Experiment

Omaha (AP) — Some 2,500 Catholic school teachers from Iowa and Nebraska were told Thursday that the future of parochial education hinges on the ability of church schools to innovate and experiment.

The Rev. Andrew M. Greeley of Chicago, a priest-sociologist, told the Catholic Teachers Institute in a keynote address that Catholic schools are experiencing a "crisis of transition."

Father Greeley, a director of the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago, listed these reasons for the changing nature of Catholic schools:

Ethnic Identity

—Immigrant groups, once an important factor in maintaining schools to preserve their ethnic identity, have become Americanized.

—The ecumenical movement, which stressed dialog among Christian bodies, seems to make sectarian education undesirable.

—Religious teaching orders are on the decline.

'Narrow View'

—With the increasing desire for more religious fellowship, parochial schools are viewed "as bastions of a narrow view of Christian life."

Nebraska News

In another talk before the opening session, Gov. Norbert Tiemann said "there would be financial chaos in this state if private education collapsed."

Among those attending the session were Archbishop Gerald T. Bergan of Omaha, Bishop Daniel E. Sheehan of Omaha, Bishop Glennon P. Flavin of Lincoln and Bishop John L. Paschang of Grand Island.

Hastings Election OKs School Bond Of $2.3 Million

Hastings (AP) — School district voters in Hastings have approved a $2,300,000 school bond issue for construction of a new elementary and improvements and additions to three other school buildings.

In a special election Wednesday, the second vote on this bond issue this year, there were 3,212 votes in favor of the bond issue and 2,441 against it, giving the proposal more than the needed 55%.

The proposal carried in 13 of the district's 17 voting precincts.

Besides the new elementary school building, the bond issue would finance additions and improvements to another elementary school, the junior and senior high schools.

This same measure was turned down in the municipal election April 4. Wednesday's election brought out some 5,600 of the city's 11,000 eligible voters.

10,000 Flock To Open House At Lincoln Airport

An estimated crowd of more than 10,000 Lincolnites poured through an open house at the Municipal Airport Thursday afternoon which featured an airshow by the crack Air Force flight team, the Thunderbirds.

The Thunderbirds had been scheduled for a show earlier this year at the Lincoln airport, but the performance had been canceled because of the weather.

The open house also featured static displays — including a Boeing 727 three-engine jet open to the public and assorted military aircraft — scattered across the grounds.

Omaha Soldier In Korea Held On Rape Charge

Seoul (AP) — An Omaha soldier, Spec. 4 Raymond J. Elasquez, Jr., was charged here on Thursday with raping a 21-year-old Korean woman. Also indicted was Pvt. Willie N. Page, of Plaquemine, La.

The two soldiers are assigned to Company D, 30th U.S. Army Ordnance Battalion, in Seoul. They are accused of raping a Miss Yoon, daughter of a movie director, in their company compound on the night of Sept. 12. She was visiting another American soldier, according to Korean sources.

The two American soldiers will remain in U.S. Army custody until completion of all legal procedures, in accordance with the U.S.-Korean status-of-forces agreement.

No date for the first session of their trial in Korean court was announced. The minimum penalty for rape is three years in prison.

Miniature Tivoli Park Sets Scene For Dana Celebration

By JOHN LEE
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Blair — You couldn't get any closer to real Danish atmosphere than the Dana College campus this weekend.

Copenhagen's Tivoli, the famed amusement park in the heart of the city, has been created in miniature smack in the middle of the campus.

It will be the scene of Dana's two-day homecoming celebration Friday and Saturday.

Extra Flair

The extra-special flair has been added to the annual homecoming to commemorate both the Nebraska Centennial and the 800th anniversary of the founding of the Danish capital.

"We have sent greetings to the lord mayor of Copenhagen, Urban Hansen, and also sent one of our commemorative plates, made in Denmark and bearing an etching of Old Main," said Dana Publicity Director Phil Pagel. The mayor visited the campus during a U.S. tour in 1965.

In return, the Danes came up with a surprise of their own for the campus gala.

Danish Pastries

"Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS) sent 1,500 assorted Danish pastries that were baked in Copenhagen Tuesday and flown here packed in dry ice," enthused Pagel.

Such a treat, for serving at the Saturday night smorgasbord in the Campus Center, had earlier been ruled out as too expensive by the event's planners.

Other delicacies for sale on the Tivoli grounds will be kringle, sukkerkringler and aebleskiver from genuine Danish bakers in Racine, Wis., and Harlan, Iowa.

Hypnotism Show

Participating with booths and games of chance modeled after the Danish amusement park are 26 campus organizations. Entertainment will be continuous Friday and Saturday, highlighted by hypnotist Edwin Baron's show Saturday evening.

One of five coeds — Ilene Taake, of Tilden; Paige Yowell, of Herman; Beverly Deepe, of Bruning; Chris Rueter, of St. Paul; Minn., and Ellen Thomsen, of Racine, Wis.—will be crowned homecoming queen Friday night.

The traditional football game Saturday afternoon pits Dana against Sioux Falls College.

Fireworks will close Tivoli just before 1 a.m. Sunday each week in Copenhagen.

The campus park is decorated with a gaily lighted replica of Tivoli's arched gate and decorations from Danish tourist offices in this country and from Tivoli itself.

Ending the homecoming weekend will be a religious reformation festival service Sunday morning.

Award Honors 'Hero' For Saving Boy's Life

Hastings — An Omaha laboratory technician Thursday was named to receive the Nebraska "Hero's Award."

He is Arlan Greve of 2107 So. 61st Ave., who has been credited with saving the life of a 3-year-old neighbor child. The incident occured Oct. 5.

In making the announcement, Earl Haase, president of the Nebraska Funeral Directors Association which sponsors the award, said, "Greve despite the fact that he is crippled from polio, displayed exceptional courage and fortitude."

The child is Dean A. Zerbe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Zerbe, Jr., of 2108 So. 61st St.

Greve reported that he saw out of the window of his home, the motionless body of the boy hanging from a gym set in the backyard of the Zerbe residence.

The technician immediately went to the rescue but a fence delayed his attempt. He threw his crutches over the fence and leaned backward over it, bending the fence until his weight plunged his body into the Zerbe yard.

The hood of the child's jacket had caught near the top of the gym set and the jacket had chocked him. "I don't know how I got up or got the boy down," he said. "I usually can't do that sort of thing."

But he did get the boy down and discovered that his heart was not beating. He began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, tion.

Eventually, the boy began breathing. He was hurried to a hospital where doctors credited Greve with saving the child's life.

"Greve's action is one of the most heart-warming since the Nebraska Funeral Directors began making this award three years ago," Haase said.

He will be given a plaque on "Hero's Night" at the Funeral Directors convention in Lincoln next April.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Our inclination is to take issue with the action of the State Board of Equalization in establishing a 10 per cent personal and 2 per cent corporate income tax rate for 1968. And the primary responsibility for this rests, of course, with Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

In one respect, the board and Tiemann gain public favor. They have set the lowest possible rate, have kept taxes down and this is always a popular move.

But what the action does to the future is not quite so clear. What Tiemann seems to be doing is guiding the state toward a 3 per cent sales tax and a lower income tax rate. This is placing the emphasis on the sales rather than the income tax and this is not where it belongs.

At best, there should be a balance between the two forms of taxes but the way we are heading, there will be far more income from the sales than the income tax. With the 3 per cent sales tax the governor is shooting for in 1969, we would have about $65 million a year from that source and about $35.5 million a year from the income tax.

This the governor hopes to achieve by calling a special session of the Legislature late in 1968 but before the Nov. 15 deadline for setting the 1969 income tax. At that time, senators could set the sales tax at 3 per cent.

Under current law, the sales tax drops to 2 per cent on Jan. 1, 1969. But the 3 per cent rate, presumably, would allow us to keep the income tax at 10 and 2 per cent respectively.

What senators should understand is that they have several options open to them. They do not have to establish a 3 per cent sales tax, but could hold the figure to its present 2½ per cent level.

★

This would mean that the income tax would have to go to somewhere around 14 per cent on the personal rate and about 3 per cent on the corporate rate. The net result of this would be a state dollar income split of about $49 million a year from the income tax and $55 million from the sales tax.

Such a split would be a much more equitable distribution than that which would be achieved under a 3 per cent sales tax. The 3 per cent sales tax simply is not fair treatment for income tax advocates.

The direction Tiemann is heading is likely to alienate those people who accepted a sales tax merely as a compromise in order to solve the tax problem of Nebraska. Such people expected that the two forms of taxation would bear their fair share of the load but this is not what is happening.

It can be argued that the income tax can be used to provide for future growth in state spending but the same argument can be used against the sales tax. A number of senators have said the sales tax should have been placed at 3 per cent in the first place but the fact is that it was not.

★

Tiemann's proposed distribution as between the two tax forms puts the burden of state spending more heavily on the least equitable tax. The sales tax falls heavily upon low-income groups in proportion to what they have and more lightly upon high-income groups.

If the theory of ability to pay is at all applicable in tax matters—and we fail to see how it can be denied—then the burden should be falling more heavily upon the income tax. It is the income tax by which people come to pay according to their ability to do so.

The Tiemann proposal is a victory for high-income groups and a defeat for the lower-income groups. It would not be surprising if it finally came out this way but senators and the public should not be confused over complicated fiscal reports. They should understand that there is a clear choice in this matter and the state can operate just as effectively with either choice.

New Treaty Agreement Against Arming Stars

Thirteen world powers have signed a solemn treaty neither to arm the stars of nature and nature's God nor the man-made stars that now clutter up the lower heavens. Atomic bombs and missiles are not to find a hiding place in the heavens, these powers agree.

"The firmament confirmeth God's handiwork," and it is nice, even comforting, to know that man has decided not to louse it up.

But what is bound to interest a great many of us skeptics here on earth is the inspection system. Who is going to be the inspector general who rockets from satellite to satellite, from man-made orbital laboratory to laboratory, and from the moon to Mars to the Milky Way?

If, after years of wrangling, the two greatest atomic powers on this globe cannot arrive at an inspection system for control of fission and fusion bombs and missiles; if they cannot agree right here and now — right on terra firma — on a method of control and inspection of atomic power, why should a world shivering under threat of atomic immolation believe that the heavenly pact can be kept or enforced without adequate inspection?

Havelock Ellis, long before it was even dreamed that man would (1) split the atom to his possible doom and (2) successfully conquer space and reach for the moon, said that if man could but get his hands on the stars he would destroy them, even as he had made havoc of earth's inherited beauties.

For years, as I have seen Americans ravage the beauty that lies all around us for the sake of a handful of dollars, as I have seen the wild shores despoiled, the forests mutilated, the Grand Canyon endangered, the Hudson River Valley threatened, and the highways despoiled by billboards against which even the president and the Congress of the United States will not prevail, I have thought of Ellis's prophetic remark.

It is only a matter of time now until man puts his hands on the moon, the other planets and the stars.

☆ ☆ ☆

This country is no longer the democracy to which the founding fathers gave shape and blessing. We are a military . . . a military what? Not yet a dictatorship. Not yet an autocracy, but surely military-oriented.

The military gets the lion's share of taxation; probably —including hidden items — more than $100 billion annually.

So now that the international treaty against arming the stars or satellites has been signed, I expect that our military masters will soon be asking for billions to put up a huge net all across the nation to catch such atomic weapons as brutal aggressors will rain on us from the stars that they sneakily arm!

Well, what are taxes for?

Man at last has the capability of putting his hands on the stars.

It was nice to have known them before their destruction began . . .

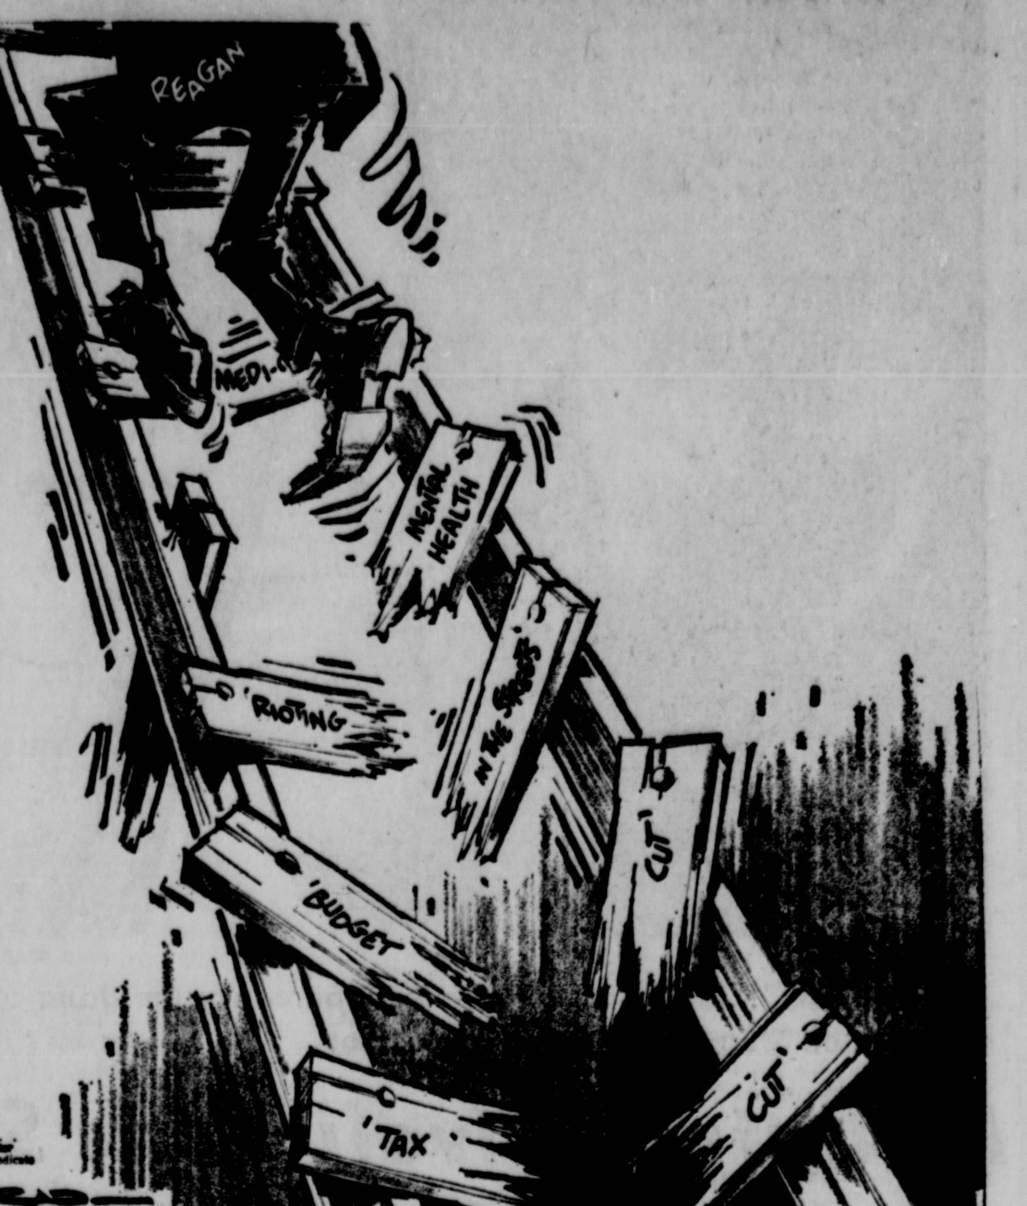
Nothing Succeeds Like Failure



New Fairgrounds Location

Relocation of the Nebraska State Fairgrounds is not an original idea with Sen. Terry Carpenter but his thinking on the subject makes good sense. Carpenter has suggested that the present fairgrounds could be sold and the proceeds applied toward a new and modern installation.

He reasons, quite correctly, that the present fairgrounds is not up to date and not as well located as it could be, from the point of view of the fair itself and the city of Lincoln.

Carpenter envisions a fairgrounds development that could provide a longer and improved racing season, a greater attraction for large sporting events and improved cooperation between the cities of Lincoln and Omaha. He suggests a location near the Interstate.

It was once thought that the fairgrounds could be located on some of the abandoned Lincoln Air Force property and this may still have some possibilities. But there is no question that Carpenter's remarks contain a lot of merit.

It is true, as he said, that with new facilities, the State Fair could be developed into the leading such attraction throughout the 50 states. Additionally, the grounds could become a focal point for other activities during the remainder of the year, providing an economic stimulant for the entire state.

It is hoped that earnest study is one day given to this matter as opposed to continued spending on improvements on existing facilities. We should spend our money where we will receive the greatest return and that could well be a new plant.

No Accounting For Taste

A few years ago former President Eisenhower made somewhat of a laughing stock of himself by wondering out loud "whatever happened to the minuet?" Columnists, musicians, teen-agers and other assorted types had a field day poking fun at Mr. Eisenhower. The minuet? Man, they said, that went out with high-button shoes.

At the risk of creating more of the same kind of comment, whatever happened to good books? This is from a Time Magazine review of a new novel:

"Cathy, aged 12, is trying to decide whether God goes around naked or lives in a cemetery. Ethel, 23, hears voices, hates her husband, resents her baby, and is determined to become a prostitute in her spare time . . ."

Fascinating folks. But what relationship do they have to reality?

We don't want to bring back the minuet, and we're not exactly in favor of Dr. Seuss except for pre-schoolers. But why is so much of what's being written today about perverted, corrupt characters? For example, the runaway best-seller "Valley of the Dolls." "Candy" is better. So's "Fanny Hill." (And those are not on anybody's list of great books.) "Valley," in fact, is one of the poorest books to come along in many moons. Not since "Peyton Place" have so many people read a book with so little to offer.

To call this and similar efforts "literature" or "art" is to twist considerably the meanings of those two words. It is, of course, a judgment call. And there's no accounting for taste. But there is a level of writing quality below which no best-seller should fall. "Valley" is below that level.

Ike mourned for the minuet. We mourn for "Huckleberry Finn." Or "To Kill a Mockingbird." Books with real situations involving real people. Come back, Huck.

Advisory Groups Vested With More Power Than Is Good For The American Taxpayer

WASHINGTON — Increasingly, government advisory committees are becoming a shadowy branch of government exercising great powers, largely unscrutinized and unaccountable to the taxpayers.

There are literally hundreds of advisory committees throughout the government, many of them populated with representatives of the special interests. Through these committees, food processors help make policy for farmers, and producers recommend government action on behalf of consumers.

All too often the advisory committee's chief contribution is to provide the government agency with an excuse to avoid solving painful problems.

One of the best examples of how erosive an advisory committee can be is the advisory committee on traffic safety, which has been shaping policy for the Health, Education, and Welfare Department. The committee is headed by Daniel P. Moynihan, able director of urban studies at Harvard.

The most influential member is Moynihan's close personal friend, Dr. William Haddon Jr., who is director of traffic safety at the Transportation Department, sits on an advisory council that is determining policy for a rival agency — HEW.

From the first, Haddon has displayed a hostility to HEW's traffic safety personnel and has not hesitated to give out biting, jarring attacks on them at advisory committee meetings. Naturally, this has embittered the HEW safety people and has resulted in a near total lack of cooperation between the rival traffic safety agencies —which, of course, makes the American public the loser.

Real fact is the Moynihan-Haddon committee had been in existence less than a month before it delivered a sweeping, unsubstantiated attack upon the HEW people who were working on traffic safety. The attack took the form of a scathing, confidential report, still classified, to Secretary John Gardner.

☆ ☆ ☆

Piling invective upon invective, the Moynihan-Haddon committee said of Haddon's rivals:

"This has been a dead bureaucracy; defensive, secretive, even at times hostile. Incapable of initiative on its own, it has viewed the efforts of others as threats . . .

"The responsibility of the division of accident prevention was to be a center of critical and rigorous intelligence on this subject within the federal government, and it failed in that responsibility, opting instead for a banality and self-assurance very near to ignorance.

"Impervious alike to the exhortations of presidents and the imprecations of reformers, it chugged along in idleness until a near crisis arose and its work was done by others . . . New men, new organization and a new sense of the possibilities of public service are as much needed as new money."

These assertions were not backed up with evidence. They were merely offered as unsupported conclusions before the committee had scarcely settled down to its study.

Result has been rampant demoralization of the HEW's traffic safety personnel and program. Dr. Paul Joliet, who had been running the program, resigned in disgust. Other topflight researchers were deeply disillusioned by the sweep of the Moynihan-Haddon indictment. Recruitment has been difficult — too difficult. The whole spirit of the program has been scuttled.

There is no accountability or control on the power of such advisory committees which can wreak their havoc, demoralize agencies, and disband, leaving raw feelings and resentment.

Even the good that such committees can do is lost because they are looked upon as outsiders having authority but no follow-through responsibility.

What the advisory committee on traffic safety has actually done is to paralyze an agency's activities in traffic safety, and provoke uncertainty and resentment.

The Aid-To-Greece Puzzle

WASHINGTON — What is happening in Greece today would be a farce if it were not a tragedy. Aristophanes and Sophocles might have collaborated, with some help from a far-out television script writer, to put together the scenario being played out in Athens.

The military dictatorship is notorious not so much for its cruel repression as for its bumbling incompetence. And the lurching from side to side, which at times makes the operation look like a Mack Sennett comedy, causes acute dismay in our State Department. Policy in the department is premised on the wistful belief that somehow the colonels and the generals will get the show back on a constitutional track.

Greece is in many ways a dramatic illustration of the poverty of American policy. Having put close to $4 billion into the country to save it from communism, the end result is a dictatorship by a military junta with fascist attachments that is now saying, if you don't send more help, the communists will get us.

☆ ☆ ☆

The colonels and the generals would have rejoiced if they could have heard the oratory on the House floor the other day. No less a luminary than L. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, championed Greece as a loyal NATO ally with a commitment by the United States to Greek security.

The occasion was a measure approving loans of American war vessels to a number of countries. This is a phase of the military aid program which like death and taxes has achieved perpetual status. The United States has on loan to Greece two destroyers and a submarine and the only conclusion from Chairman Rivers' oratory is that these vessels are essential to the defense of the West.

Voices were raised in protest, suggesting that it might be wise at least to see the direction of events in Greece and whether there was any chance for a new constitution with a deadline set for Dec. 15. Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., arguing the need for a debate on American policy toward Greece, pointed to the latest instance of the junta's folly.

Mrs. Helen Vlachos is the courageous publisher of two Athens newspapers. A conservative, she refused to publish under the censorship by the military after the coup on April 21. To publish would simply have meant carrying the official line of the dictatorship both in the news and on the editorial page, and this in all conscience she would not do.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Vlachos talked to newspapermen in her office. She attacked the regime, charging they had failed to live up to a promise to restore freedom of the press. This interview appeared in an Italian newspaper. Later a team from CBS went to Athens to film an interview with Mrs. Vlachos for the "Face the Nation" program.

Promptly she was put under house arrest, her apartment searched by the military, the threat of trial by a military court for insulting the government held over her head and her husband, a naval hero out of World War II, also under arrest. The maximum sentence could be eight years but it is believed the outcry around the world will at least mitigate her punishment.

With the State Department privately expressing its unhappiness at this zig, the junta promptly took a zag in the other direction by releasing George Papandreou, the venerable former premier who is one of the few figures commanding wide popular esteem. His son, Andreas, is still being held on trial on a charge of treason.

As this was going on, two prominent Greek officials—Dimitriou Galanis, governor of the Bank of Greece, and Constantine Thanis of the Ministry of Coordination - were calling on government and international loan officials to assure them that everything was lovely in Greece. Despite what they reported as an eight per cent drop in tourism, the pair presented figures to show that, thanks to the closing of the Suez Canal, receipts from Greek shipping are up and the fiscal position of the country improved. While, according to officialdam, they made no pitch for more help, 53 House members signed a letter saying that any move to restore aid would do "most serious damage" to America's position in the world.

Some Americans who were in Greece this summer are saying that the people seem happy. Gas station attendants and hotel clerks say they admire the regime. This sounds a bit like the visitors to Italy in the early days of fascism who were so pleased to find that the trains ran on time. One can only wonder what Greeks meeting foreign tourists could be expected to say under a dictatorship where insulting the government is a crime.

Military aid is a swamp that, once in, there is almost no way out. It creates dependencies that go on forever with the bogey of communism held up in a perpetual Hallowe'en.

Of This And That

Lincoln, Neb.

Thought I'd write The Star while it is still only five cents.

After at least 30 years that I know of, we are still not getting at the postal problem, which seems to me to be bulk-rate mailings. Recently I was very grateful to a woman in my church who sent me a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my reply. On the other hand, my church office sends me many things by bulk-rate postage, as do persons wishing to send me many things, organizations, alumni associations, city recreation department, et al.

It may or may not be an expensive way to buy newsprint, but I still prefer to buy a newspaper at a newsstand, rather than to worry myself trying to accommodate my schedule to that of a paper boy. I have only one pair of eyes, anyway, and they take quite a beating.

I know many loyal party members, in both major parties, who cannot afford expensive campaign dinners, and I cannot see why a single person should pay more for his or her seat at the table than half of a couple.

I read editorials, too, and I must say that if the Congressional Record has as sensible a speech as the one suggesting that lawns may be breeding places for insects, and that such problems are the problems of individuals and cities themselves, maybe I'd better have the Congressional Record sent me at bulk-rate postage!

There are so many minority groups in our country that I grow weary of making the poor colored man or woman a special case. I don't seem to have much trouble with colored persons, but I have to take a lot from white youngsters who have jobs and seem to have plenty of money and freedom to drive and roam the streets quite late at night.

Enough. I'm hungry and must go in search of a meal under a dollar.

Thank You

Lincoln, Neb.

On behalf of all the members of our Affiliate No. 3, may we extend our best wishes and congratulations to the staff of The Lincoln Star during the observance of National Newspaper Week.

The slogan, "Newspapers get things done," is most appropriate and deeply earned, for there is not a person in our community who does not appreciate the many contributions The Star has made as a respected voice and leader in our community for getting things done for the benefit of all of us.

Our thanks, also, for helping us get things done in our programs of service to our community by publishing information in the public interest about good grooming, new hair fashions and our welfare programs at various institutions. This has encouraged us to extend our efforts during our own observance of National Beauty Salon Week, as well as throughout the year, and has inspired us to appreciate the full meaning of public service.

The Claims

Lincoln, Neb.

So George Cook feels that Richard Nixon would end the fighting in Vietnam in six president.

Has Mr. Cook forgotten that Nixon was vice president and a member of the National Security Council when our commitment in Vietnam began?

It will be interesting now to see what reactions this ridiculous boast might bring from supporters of other Republican candidates. Romney could end it in 4½ months? Reagan, in two months? Possibly Curtis LeMay could bring an end to everything in a day?

Tiemann Says 'Big Spending Bills' Will Force Sales Tax Rate Of 3%

Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann said Thursday a 2½% sales tax would have been sufficient except for the "two big spending bills" enacted by the last Legislature.

"At the time I recommended and the Legislature enacted a 2½% rate, this was sufficient," Tiemann said.

"But this rate was set prior to the time the Legislature passed the two big spending bills — state aid to education and local government."

Tiemann's comments came in reply to Sen. Jules Burbach's statements that the governor had "insisted" upon a 2½% rate even though the Revenue Committee had advised him that "3% would be needed."

The Crofton senator, who headed the Legislature's Revenue Committee, made his "the - governor - was - told" statement as Tiemann announced Wednesday he will ask the Legislature for a 3% sales tax rate beginning Jan. 1, 1969.

The governor, dismissing Burbach's statement as "political talk," said the senator "implies I have more power with the Legislature than I have."

'Sufficient'

"The 2½% rate was sufficient, and would have been sufficient, until the Legislature later enacted the state aid to education bill calling for $12.5 million next fiscal year and $25 million annually thereafter."

Tiemann also noted the Legislature committed $10 million annually back to local governments in repealing the head tax, intangible property tax and tax on household goods and personal effects.

Tiemann said the 10% individual income and 2% corporate income tax, which becomes effective Jan. 1, together with a 3% sales tax in 1969 should be sufficient at the present level of spending.

New Programs

However, he noted, additional revenue could be needed next biennium with any new spending programs enacted by the 1969 Legislature and the University of Nebraska and University of Omaha merger, now pending approval by the Omaha voters.

Tiemann indicated any new expenditures next biennium probably would have to come from the income tax.

The present 2½% sales tax is estimated to raise some $55 million annually while $35.3 million is estimated from the income tax for 1968. This includes $26.5 million net on individual incomes after food tax credits and $8.8 from corporations.

'50-50 Ratio'

Asked what should be the ratio between sales and income revenue, Tiemann said, "Some legislators discussed a 50-50 ratio."

"I don't know that 50-50 (equal amounts from both revenue sources) is the proper ratio," the governor said, mentally calculating the present ratio at 65% sales tax and 35% income tax.

He suggested that "a proper or equitable ratio must also consider the impact upon individual incomes."

"All other taxes must be weighed in any consideration of what is the proper ratio between a sales and income tax."

The governor indicated any needed adjustments -- could come as the state gains experience in the broadened tax field.

U.S. Commission Will Decide Alleged Hatch Act Violation

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI)—The deputy director of the regional Office of Economic Opportunity said Thursday a federal Hatch Act complaint involving a Nebraska state official will be forwarded to the U.S. Civil Service Commission in Washington for disposition.

William Shovell said the OEO has little jurisdiction in the matter since it involves an interpretation of the act, which prohibits state employes who perform duties in connection with an activity financed by federal grants from taking an active part in political campaigns.

Shovell confirmed a Nebraska Democratic party official filed a formal protest with the OEO ofifce here, alleging that Samuel J. Cornelius, Nebraska technical assistance director, violated the act.

Signed By Dyas

The protest, he added, was signed by Hess Dyas of Lincoln, administrative assistant to the Nebraska Democratic party.

Dyas contends Cornelius abused the act by agreeing to join a committee backing Richard M. Nixon for president and by continuing as a ward chairman in the Douglas County Republican party.

Shovell said Cornelius has been asked to submit his version of the story.

"When we gather and corelate all the information, we will forward it to the Civil Service Commission in Washington for interpretation and any appropriate action the commission might deem neccessary," Shovell said.

"As far as any interpretation of who did what and when, we don't make this ruling. This is entirely up to the Civil Service Commission."

Dyas has asked Republican Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann to dismiss Cornelius but the governor replied that he would do no such thing. Tiemann said Cornelius has violated no law.

State Fairgrounds Relocation Called 'Desirable' By Brandt

State Fair Manager Henry Brandt said Thursday the subject of a state fairgrounds relocation has not even come up in the State Fair Board in the past year, but said he agrees with Sen. Terry Carpenter that a new fairground complex would be desirable.

He commented in the wake of the Scottsbluff senator's suggestion that the state scrap the present fairgrounds, sell the land and use the money to develop a new fairgrounds layout near the Interstate highway in the Lincoln area.

Brandt estimated a new grandstand and race track would cost from $8 million to $12 million. Carpenter's suggestion that parimutuel tax revenue from the Lincoln race meet, $140,000 to $150,000 a year, be returned to the fair board, would help, Brandt said, but "it would still be expensive."

Not New

Relocation of the fair from its present 260-acre site is not a new suggestion.

At the time the Lincoln Air Force Base was deactivated, consideration was given to relocating at that site.

"We looked at the base, but that's as far as it went," said Brandt. "It looked like it was going to be impossible because of the cost involved."

Brandt noted that the fair "is still growing and we have to continue to grow." The merits of any proposal will be weighed, he said.

Liberian Tanker Runs Aground In River Thames

London (AP)—The 22,610-ton oil tanker Statue of Liberty ran aground Thursday night on a sandbank in the main channel of the River Thames estuary approach to London.

The fully loaded Liberian-registered ship sent out a call for tugs to help her get off the sand near the north Kent coast.

The ship is owned by Grand Bassa Tankers, Inc., and is 13 years old. Her home port is listed in Lloyds Register of Shipping as Monrovia, Liberia.

Park Board Nixes KLIN Egg Hunt

The City Parks and Recreation Advisory Board Thursday turned thumbs down on KLIN radio station's request to hold its annual Golden Egg Hunt on city property in the spring of next year.

The 1967 edition of the hunt found hundreds of Lincolnites swarming into Holmes Park only to find the park apparently eggless.

Even a bulldozer failed to uncover the egg and the $1,000 check at the spot it was supposed to be located and the hunt was called off.

The egg was discovered recently by a city employe who was rewarded by the station for his find.

Park and Recreation Director Jim Ager said that damages to Holmes Park because of the hunt "were hard to pin down", but a bill amounting to over $900 has been sent to the station.

In recommending denial of KLIN manager Jack Callaway's request to renew the event next year, the park board indicated that "there is too much trouble repairing damages," even if the radio station picks up the tab.

Ager recommended that the board deny the request.

In other board action, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Cromwell asked that a riding ring located in Holmes Park adjacent to their property and that of other residents along Shamrock Road be relocated to another site in the park.

The ring was erected at private expense and will be used by a 4-H Club for training in various horseback events.

The Cromwell's maintain that use of the ring will increase to the extent that bleachers and lights will be added, resulting in "dust, crowds, lights and odor."

Cromwell offered to pay the cost of relocating the ring at any one of four locations:

—The alfalfa field on the west side of 70th north of the park entrance.

—North of Normal Blvd., west of the dam.

—East of 70th, adjacent to Antelope Creek.

—At the dead end of Van Dorn, next to the dam.

The park board asked Ager to investigate the sites and recommend whether it is feasible to relocate the ring if other property owners voice no objections.

Ager said he preferred to see the riding ring "remain where it is, and make a policy prohibiting permanent lights and bleachers."

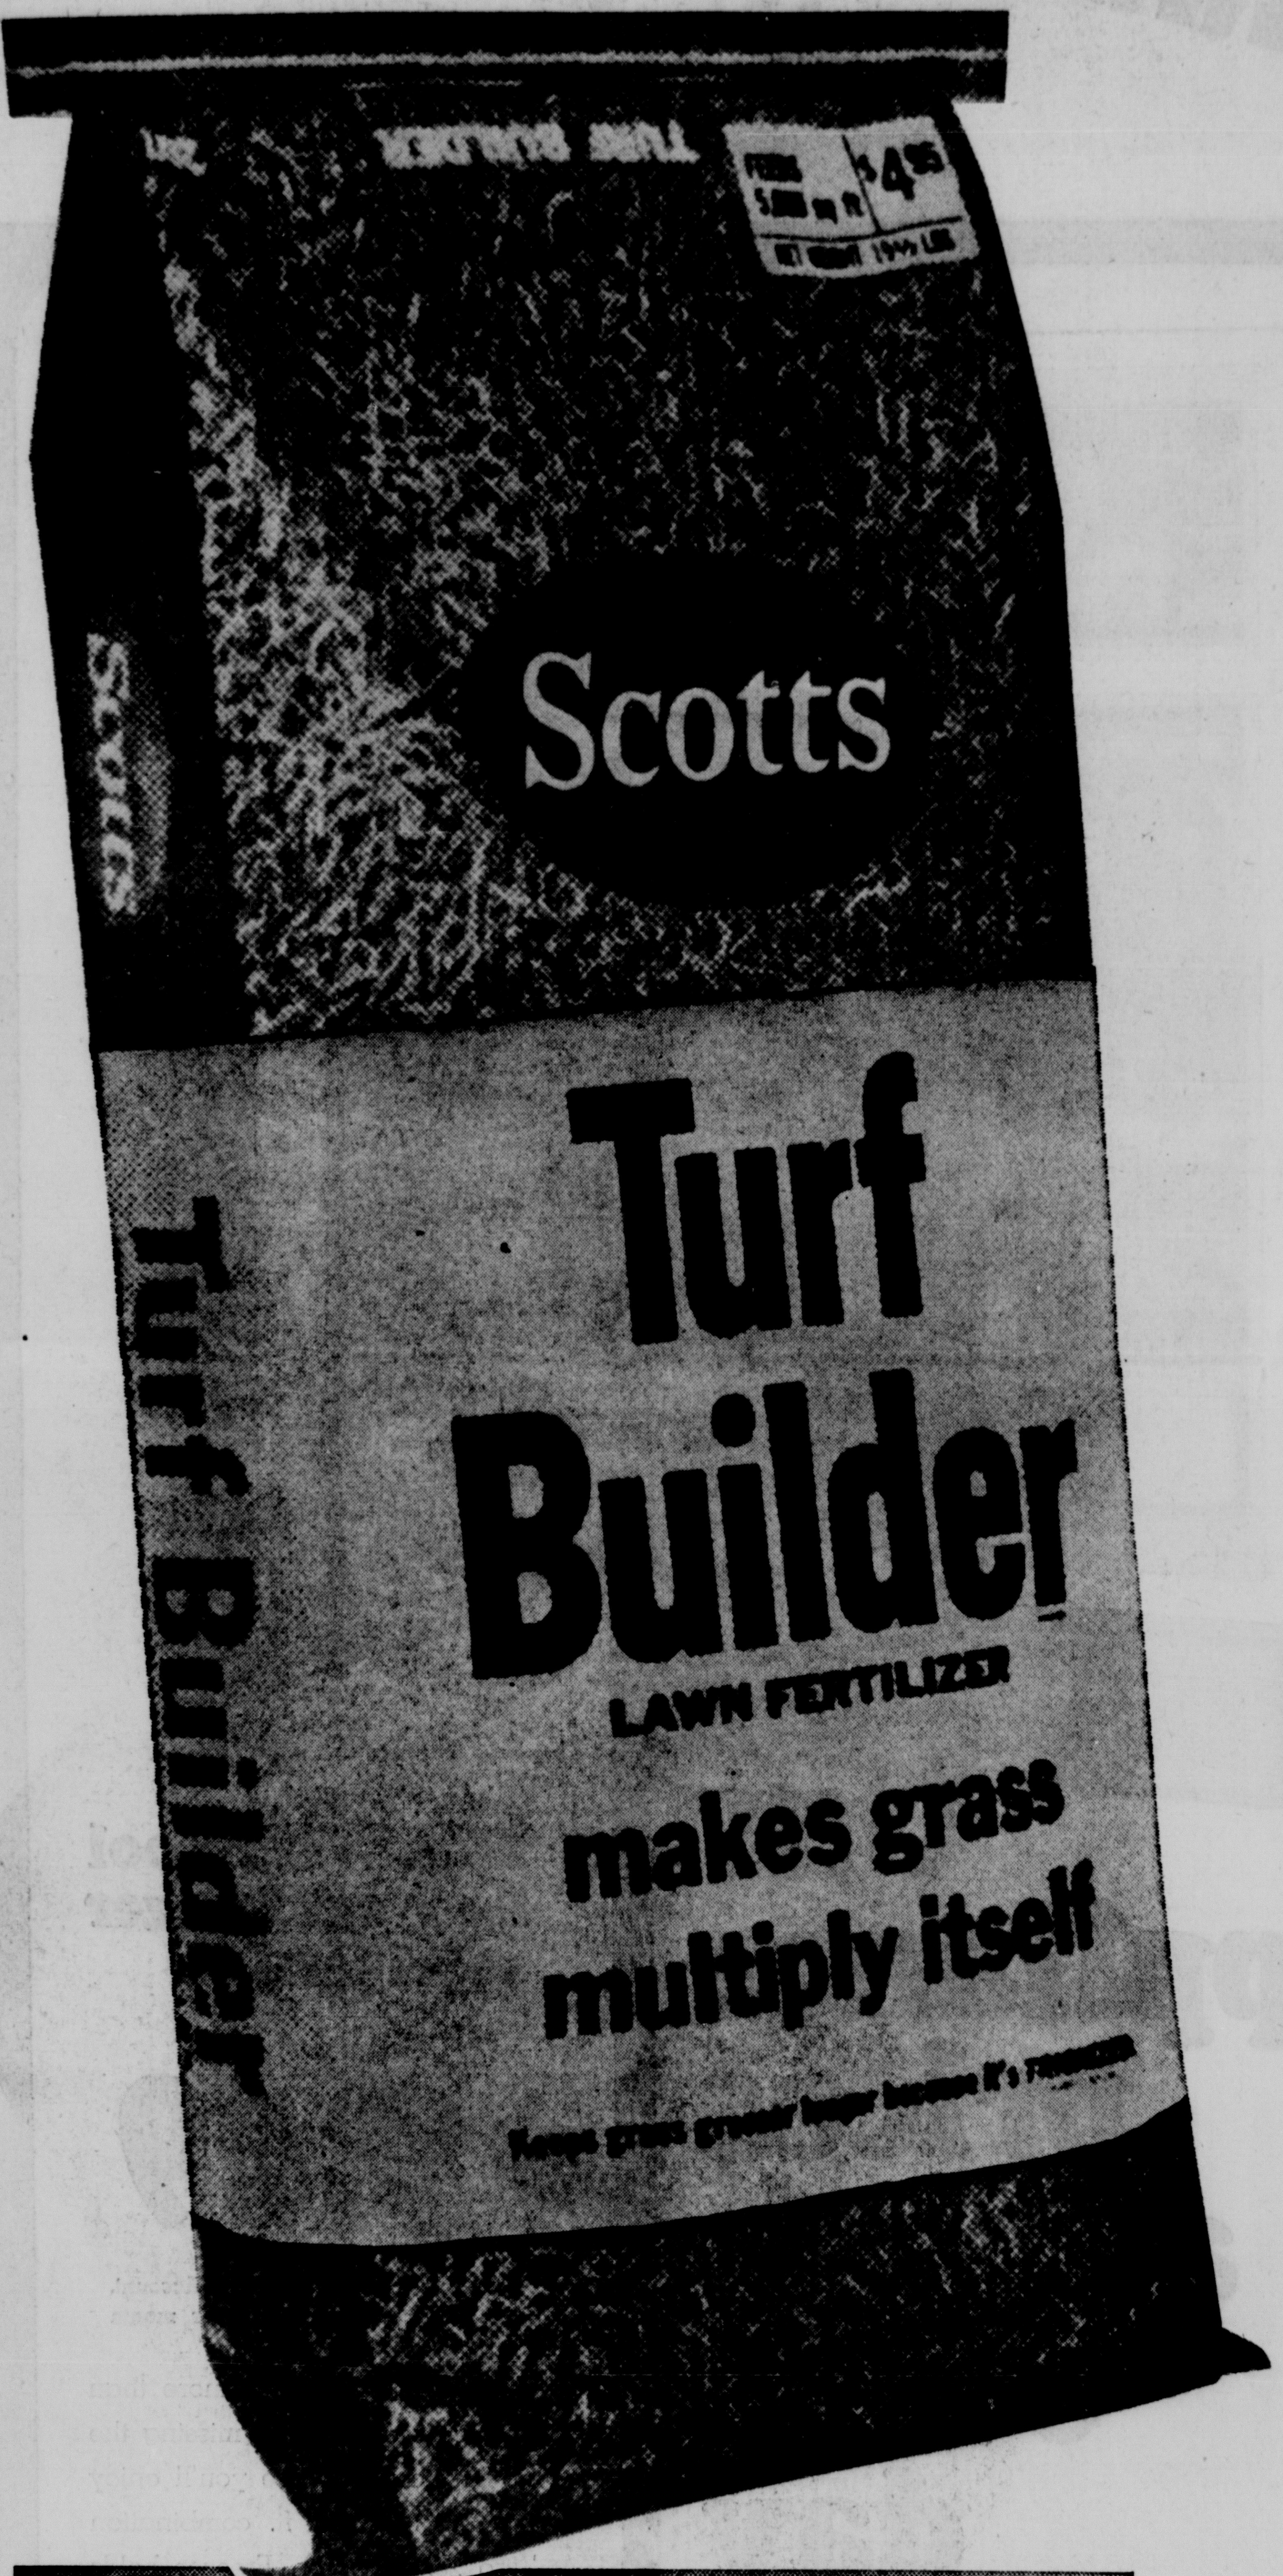
"October is an ideal time to fertilize your lawn!"



Yes, experience has taught me that late fall and early winter is a sensible and far-sighted time to improve any lawn.

Even though grass is inactive above ground, root development can go on all through the winter months, ensuring a sturdier and earlier spring green-up—and thicker turf. And if you use Turf Builder there will be no loss of feeding power, no matter how low the temperature goes. The patented Trionized bonding prevents leaching or nutritional breakdown.

"Double Dare" offer on America's favorite fertilizer

Try a bag of TURF BUILDER, the fertilizer that makes grass multiply itself. Watch what it does for your lawn—how it makes it grow thicker, greener, sturdier. If you aren't truly enthusiastic, send your sales slip to Scotts for a full refund or, if you prefer, they'll buy you TWO bags of any other fertilizer—any kind, any price.

Would you like to eliminate next year's dandelions, now?

Most people are not aware that the common dandelion is a biennial. This means that the seed germinates in late summer, grows through the fall and lives over winter to give us those many yellow blossoms in the spring. Because the dandelion is a biennial, early fall, when the dandelion is growing lush, is an excellent time to apply Turf Builder Plus Two, killing the dandelion and letting the grass thicken in the spot left by the dead weed.

Save money as you weed-'n-feed your lawn

This is the lowest price ever on Scotts amazing TURF BUILDER PLUS 2, the grass fertilizer that also clears out 17 kinds of broad leaf and vining weeds. Results are outstanding. As weeds fade away the fertilized grass fills in where the weeds were, turning unsightly weed patches into handsome, vibrantly green turf.

Business Executives Of Future To Be 'Chosen By Computer'

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Executives and presidents of corporations will be "chosen by computers" in the near future, a research expert on management problems predicted here Thursday.

Dr. Eugene E. Jennings, professor of business administration at Michigan State University in East Lansing, told nearly 600 persons attending the Nebraska Hospital Association convention that a computer will be better able to determine which people are likely to succeed in the business world.

Reporting on research of determining the success of managers such as hospital administrators, Jennings emphasized that management objectives should always be dual: making a profit for the company and creating new managers.

Good Manager

A good manager is one who is able to work within his established priorities and still keep other ideas "in a holding pattern" until a more suitable time.

However, he added, a successful manager also is "flexible. At any given time one value may be more important than another. Priorities last only as long as it takes to prepare another set."

The Michigan professor measures an effective manager on the basis of his "mobility—the extent to which people get promotions, move to bigger corporations and higher positions of authority."

Power-Oriented

He described the effective or mobile manager as one who teaches values rather than constructs rules and policies, who views his role as power-oriented rather than authority-oriented and who is concerned with project management rather than position management.

The hospital administrators and officials were urged not to be disturbed by prospective executives who indicate their intent to use a position as a springboard to other opportunities.

"Hospital administrators have not been breeding managers," he pointed out. "This is a major purpose of administration so that the whole profession improves."

Achievement

The art of effective management, according to Jennings, is the simultaneous achievement of training managers and reaching the goals of the institution or firm.

The research expert declared the best combination of college degrees today is undergraduate work in engineering or science and a Master's degree in business administration.

Leo E. Suycott, president of Associated Hospital Service Inc., in Milwaukee, Wis., praised the Nebraska hospitals' shared computer project to provide better patient care and relieve the professional nurse from non-nursing duties.

Demonstration

"This is one of the greatest demonstrations of hospitals to prove they are interested in finding ways to serve the public with better care at a lower cost," he contended.

A program on Nebraska's planning for its nursing needs featured Dr. Irene Butter of the Bureau of Hospital Research at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

She instructed the hospital administrators in various methods to determine supply and demand of nurses, emphasizing the responsiveness to economic incentives.

Dr. Rena E. Boyle, associate dean for nursing in the University of Nebraska College of Medicine in Omaha, and Mrs. Lorraine L. Hedman of Omaha, president of the Nebraska State Nurses Association, reported on educational plans and current status of nursing needs in the state.

Conductor Defends Beatles' Music As 'Product Of Twentieth Century'

"Too many people dismiss the Beatles as being only a rowdy bunch of children making noises that are supposed to resemble music," the conductor of the Omaha Symphony Orchestra said Thursday night.

Speaking at a dinner meeting of the Nebraska Hospital Association, conductor Joseph Levine said that "people should realize that this type of music is a product of this century just as Beethoven's was of the 18th century."

Levine — defending his topic "Is Culture Therapeutic?" —said that man "is always trying to better himself by exposing himself to the finest in life. By doing so, he dismisses a lot of the mental illnesses that exist in life."

"Even the Beatles are a form of culture," he added. "As a matter of fact, I consider them to be the best o their contemporaries in the modern jazz field."

The Omaha conductor rapped parents who instilled "musical prejudice" in their children.

"Children should be exposed to the classics at an early age," he explained, "but their own type of music should not be taken away from them."

Re-Worked Classics

But Levine cautioned youth against carrying the interest in their own music too far. Youth often fail to realize that much can be gained by looking into the past, and quite a few of today's modern "hits" are only re-worked classics, he said.

"Today's children are being subjected to a Madison Avenue approach that doesn't care whether the product being sold is worthy or not. The advertising man is just out to make a profit."

Levine told the group that he favored no special composer, but confessed a deep attraction for classical works.

"I can get as much pleasure out of listening to jazz as I can from symphonies. But there is a depth and a complexity to Beethoven that no modern jazz performer could ever hope to attain," he said.

UAW Agrees To Send 900 Back To Work

Detroit (UPI) — The United Auto Workers agreed Thursday to send about 900 striking Ford Motor Co. workers back to their jobs to produce parts needed by American Motors Corp.

Under the agreement, three Ford factories will resume production for nine to 13 days.

But a wildcat strike threatened to stymie the purpose of agreement which was reached to maintain production at AMC, smallest and poorest of the "big four" auto makers. The strike by AMC workers at Kenosha, Wis., the firm's only assembly plant, halted production of 1968 models.

Local issues sparked the walkout, spokesmen said.

Hearing Set For Alvarez

The State Supreme Court will hear oral arguments Nov. 9 on the case of condemned murderer Thomas A. Alvarez, the court disclosed.

The case is before the court for automatic review of the death penalty handed down by Lancaster District Court Judge Bartlett E. Boyles.

Alvarez, 19-year-old laborer formerly of Denver, drew the death sentence after pleading guilty to the Sept. 14, 1966 slaying of Lincoln socialite Mrs. Mary O'Shea.

Attorneys for Alvarez have contended Judge Boyles failed properly to take into account the fact that Alvarez pleaded guilty, his cooperation with police, absence of a penalty recommendation by the prosecutor, and philosophical objection to capital punishment.

Ciudad Obregon is a cotton town on the West Coast of Mexico. They are reclaiming the Sonora desert, mile after mile, with dammed water.

There are still hundreds of miles of primitive land. Tarahumara Indians who cut their hair shoulder-length and wear a home-woven cotton kilt.

The fierce Yaquis are gone. Or are left only in mixed bloodlines and in names: the Rio Yaqui. They had a game so funny it would kill you—which it did

They took captured Federal soldiers and sliced the soles off his feet. Then they stuck him with cactus thorns until he got up and tried to run.

They were tough, indestructible desert Indians. They never surrendered.

☆ ☆ ☆

This town was named for General Obregon. One of the General-Presidents who came out of the Revolution.

"Revolutions begin in the north," is a Mexican saying.

The northerners are desert-bred. They are horse soldiers—paved highways and cars are a recent thing in Mexico.

They wear the big curving brim hats you see in the movies. Banded with silver braid and big enough to hold a gallon of water.

They rode through the desert, up the plateau and to the capital to the tune of "La Cucaracha"—the cockroach.

"He cannot march anymore.
"He can't, because he hasn't got
"Marijuana to smoke."

☆ ☆ ☆

The town of Ciudad Obregon looks quite modern these days. Glass-and-steel buildings. (Alongside lovely old colonial houses.)

Cotton buildings three blocks long. Quite a few U.S. firm names. But Mexico protects its nationals. It's hard to go into business down here if you're a foreigner. And businesses must be 51 per cent Mexican owned.

Foreigners cannot buy beach land — you must be something like 15 miles from coastline before you can own land. Even then, there are restrictions.

You can lease beach land for 20 years.

There are not as many beaches as you would think on the Gulf of California.

☆ ☆ ☆

The desert marches down to the coast. Then the land turns marshy and fills with mangrove trees. Thick growth, half in and half out of the water.

Mosquitoes. Little biting gnats called jejenes. They leave an itching welt that lasts for a week. And then there was malaria.

Now they've sprayed for mosquitoes.

The coast lands are white with cotton.

The Mexican peso is hard currency.

The generals seem to be out of politics. In the last three elections, Mexico has elected lawyers.

☆ ☆ ☆

I hate to see the desert go. But this is still wonderful Mexico. Where gas stations run out of gas. The restroom is out of order. The swimming pool is advertised grandly. But the water doesn't run—and hasn't since the advertisement was printed.

You get a boy to watch your car. And you come back to find he's washed it. "Watch" and "wash" sound much alike in a Mexican accent. When you say "watch," put a forefinger on your lower eyelid and pull it down.

Mexicans talk a lot with their hands.

☆ ☆ ☆

Pull an imaginary beard. Means, "There's a pretty girl!" The Mexican waitress puts her thumb and forefinger a quarter inch apart: "Wait just a minute."

Bang you elbow on your fist: "Stingy fellow. Didn't leave a tip."

If another driver cuts in front of you, show him your fist with thumb and little finger extended. Like horns. That is very nasty.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Army is no longer on horseback. They use jeeps. Officers don't carry the elegant hand-made swords from Oaxaca. The revolutionary swords are hung on library walls. A reminder of wilder days. They were polished like silver and bear a carved inscription:

"When the viper bites in the moment of heat, there is no remedy in the drugstore or prescription of the doctor."

PARTY with the mostest—confusion

When the newspaper photographer arrived at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Clifford Hardin Wednesday afternoon to "cover the action" at the annual autumn tea of the university's Faculty Wives Club, he found most of the action downstairs in the recreation room.

Upstairs, all was peace and quiet with only lady-like conversation and the slight ring of silver against china to be heard—but downstairs, that was a different story. More than 30 faculty youngsters of pre-school age were having a wonderful time at a party of their own, and the photographer decided that was the party to record on film.

Unidentified guests (the younger generation moves so fast and some could not pronounce their names let alone spell them) are pictured with three, busy hostess-sitters (from the left) Miss Linda Schroeder, seated on the floor; Mrs. Adrian Ewing, in the background and, kneeling, Miss Mabel Vannoy.

TALK around the town

Here it is—Friday, the 13th. So, don't let a black cat cross your path; don't walk under a ladder; don't open an umbrella in the house; be sure to count to 10 if you return to someplace or other for something you forgot and—Oh well, we could go on and on, but we won't.

We hear that there will be bus-loads and bus-loads of Cornhusker followers from Lincoln at the game on Saturday, and we also hear that although they won't be arriving by bus, there will be numerous football fans from Colorado in Lincoln the weekend of Oct. 21.

* * *

We're still checking on former Lincoln residents who, up to this moment, are seriously considering a visit to their hometown on that particular weekend and before game time on Saturday, Oct. 21, we hope to have a complete list.

Right now, however, we'll begin with guests who have definite plans and who will be here for the game weekend. Dr. and Mrs. Walter Simon and Dr. and Mrs. Merritt Ringer will be coming from Boulder, Colo. next Friday, and will be the house guests of Dr. Simon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Simon.

* * *

Forsaking news of weekends for a moment, we'll talk about a midweek activity of interest. We have in mind the annual business meeting and dinner of the Cotillion Club which was held on Wednesday evening at the University Club. During the business meeting 10 new couples were elected to membership. The brand new names on the Cotillion roster include Mr. and Mrs. Tom Allman, Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Carveth, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Cech, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dobson, II, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Endacott, Mr. and Mrs. William Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. James McGraw, Dr. and Mrs. Larry McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morrow and Mr. and Mrs Dale Showers.

* * *

Now back to our chapter on weekends—and Friday, the 13th—This evening Mr. and Mrs. Norman Walt will be host and hostess at the University Club when they pay prenuptial courtesy to Miss Connie Justice and their son, Rennie Walt, whose marriage will be solemnized at a 7 o'clock ceremony on Thursday evening, Oct. 19. Guests have been invited for a 5 o'clock to 7 o'clock party.

And next Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Walt will preside at dinner at the University Club when they honor Miss Justice and Mr. Walt. The courtesy will follow the wedding rehearsal at Blessed Sacrament Church.

* * *

The 1967-68 season will oepn in festive fashion for the members of the Fifty-Fifty Club next Tuesday evening at Hotel Lincoln. We hear that "Harvest" has been chosen as the party theme by a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bridges and Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Askey, co-chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Dwight McVicker, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Feese, Mr. and Mrs. Myron E. Julian and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Voerster.

* * *

We just can't seem to stay away from those fun weekends, so we're back to Oct. 21 again— and a pre-game luncheon.

Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur G. Wiedman are the pre-game party host and hostess, and are having it at their home.

Out of town guests who will arrive in time for the luncheon and, of course, stay for the game will be Mr. and Mrs. Don Hylton of York, and Mr. and Mrs. William Desch of Grand Island.

BRIDGE: this is the day for bidding quiz

B. Jay Becker

..BIDDING QUIZ..

You are South, neither side vulnerable, and have the following hand:

♠85 ♥K963 ♦K97 ♣AQ84

1. West bids One Heart, North One Spade, and East passes. What would you bid now?

2. West bids One Heart, North One Spade, and East One Notrump. What would you bid now?

3. West bids One Heart, North One Spade, and East Two Hearts. What would you bid now?

3. West bids One Heart, North One Spade, and East Two Hearts. What would you bid now?

4. West bids One Heart, North One Spade, and East Two Clubs. What would you bid now?

1. One notrump. In the great majority of cases a suit overcall at the one level is based on a hand that would not rank as an opening bid. The overcall is generally made more for the purpose of making a part score than reaching for a game.

It follows that if North has less than an opening bid, our hand cannot produce game and we should therefore not jump to two notrump, the only other bid worth considering. Add the jack of spades and jack of hearts and you would have a two notrump bid.

2. Pass. It may seem cowardly to pass with this 12-point hand, but all indications point to the high cards being evenly divided between the two sides. It would therefore be wrong to double one notrump, especially when you consider that partner's spade strength and your king of hearts are poorly located. If there is any further bidding, you will have another chance to speak your piece.

3. Two spades. Here you cannot very well remain silent, despite the relatively poor spade support. There is too much danger that the bidding will end at two hearts if you pass. The odds favor North's having a singleton heart, and there is therefore a correspondingly good chance of his having a six-card spade suit.

The opponents are likely to make two hearts and partner should have a good chance to make two spades, though of course he may not. At any rate, you can't afford to pass and run the risk of East-West's making a part score when you may have one.

4. Pass. This time you play the waiting game because East's two club bid is forcing and West will bid again, which in turn means that you will also have a chance to bid again. You can't tell at this point how high East-West will eventually go, but you do have a surprise in store for them because they are unaware that East's club strength is largely wasted and they may unwittingly overreach themselves. If they do, you can apply the ax.

Evening Wedding

Bouquets of white chrysanthemums and ivy appointed the candlelighted chancel of the First Methodist Church in Broken Bow, Thursday evening, Oct. 12, for the marriage of Miss Wanda Lynne Still, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Aloyius Still, to William Apperson Melville, all of Broken Bow, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Alfred Melville (the former Katherine Apperson of Lincoln). The ceremony was solemnized by Dr. James Chubb of Grand Island, assisted by the Rev. Lowen Kruse, Broken Bow.

Mrs. Francis Hircock of Silver Creek, was her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmatrons were Mrs. Thomas Cerny of Ralston, and Mrs. Jon Will, Hays, Kan. Their floor-length frocks were fashioned of gold crepe.

Serving Mr. Melville as best man was Dr. William Beck of Hastings, and the groomsmen were Francis Hircock, Silver Creek, and Richard Still.

Silk damask and peau de soie in the cream tone were chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. The damask bodice was designed with a high throatline and elbow sleeves, cuffed in silk, and below the Empire waist, the slender skirt was partially veiled by a plastron panel of the damask, which continued over the shoulders into a cotillion train. Her pillbox crown of damask was encircled with ivy.

Mr. Melville is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. A member of Phi Gamma Delta and Alpa Kappa Psi, he received his Masters degree from Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif.

If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.

Looking Elsewhere

Nebraska football fans wouldn't think of letting the Husker gridders think of anything except the business at hand—which happens to be the clash with the Jayhawks at Lawrence, Kan., Saturday.

But we hope they will pardon the writers if a few of us take a quick glance elsewhere this week—like toward South Bend, Ind., or Boulder, Colo.

The clash at South Bend carries interest for both Irish fans, who hope their team can dunk the No. 1 Trojans, and for non-Irish fans, who hope to see the Golden Domers lose their second game of the season.

For Big Eight fans, there is just as much excitement about a contest in Boulder, Colo., where the first of several really-big games will be played that will lead to the decision as to which of five teams is the best in the Big Eight.

Colorado sports information director and poet Fred Casotti offers this view of the Missouri-Colorado tilt:

The Big 8 race
Should be frantic
And coming up's
The first titanic.

Don't know who'll
Take the decision
But it should be
A great collision.

When Buffs and Tigers
Untangle their tails
One will have dropped
Along the trail

Last week's mark was 4-1 in the Big Eight, 9-2 among top 10 teams and 32-14-1 overall for .694. The season record stands at 16-5-1 in the Big Eight, 24-6-1 in the top 10 and 122-60-4 overall for .667.

This week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 34, Kansas 0 . . . If the Huskers aren't looking ahead to next week, Jayhawk tacklers will be looking a[illegible] behinds.

COLORADO 20, Missouri 14 . . . The Tigers don't have a Wilmer Cooks and Gary Kombrink is no Bob Anderson.

KANSAS STATE 17, Iowa State 7 the Wildcats are good enough this year to beat a Big Eight contender, let alone lowly Iowa State.

TEXAS 21, Oklahoma 14 The Sooners have yet to give up a point, but then they haven't played anybody with guys named Bradley and Gilbert.

The Top Ten

NOTRE DAME 27, Southern Cal 24 . . . The writers and coaches say the Trojans are No. 1, but the bookies say the Fighting Irish will win by 12. We figure the bookies are closer than the writers and coaches.

PURDUE 21, Ohio State 10 . . . Only because of Le-Roy Keyes.

GEORGIA 24, Mississippi 20 . . . Don't be surprised if there is an upset here.

UCLA 28, California 7 . . . The Bruins won't blow their chance to be No. 1.

ALABAMA 30, Vanderbilt 3 . . . Bear Bryant can win this one even using legal formations.

LSU 20, Miami, Fla., 14 . . . Another slap in the face for Playboy.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE 30, Maryland 0 . . . Even with a letdown after the big Upset, North Carolina State is 30 points better than the Terrapins.

WHOOPIE . . . Gibson gets a congratulatory hug from catcher Tim McCarver.

Boston (UPI)—Bob Gibson destroyed the Boston Red Sox' fragile, fairytale dream Thursday by pitching a cooly efficient three-hitter which carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-2 seventh-game victory and their second World Series championship in four years.

Gibson easily won his celebrated pitching duel against Boston ace Jim Lonborg as the lanky Red Sox righthander, working with only two days rest, ran out of steam in the middle innings. Lonborg yielded a solo homer to Gibson and a three-run clout to Julian Javier as well as all 10 St. Louis hits and seven runs.

The Red Sox, who overcame odds of 100-1 to win the American League pennant on the final day of the season and who battled back from a 3-1 World Series deficit, never had a chance against the burly St. Louis hurler, who went the distance to record his third Series triumph.

That lifted him to a pinnacle reached by only six other pitchers in World Series annals. The last to win three games in a single Series was Lew Burdette of the Milwaukee Braves in 1958. Gibson also pitched his fifth consecutive complete Series game, tying a mark established by Red Ruffing of the New York Yankees in four different series.

Gibson, in hurling the Cards to their eighth world title in 11 Series appearances, was mobbed by his teammates when he struck out George Scott swinging for the final out of the game.

Scott was Gibson's 10th strikeout victim in the payoff game and 26th in three games.

Gibson, who also won the climactic seventh game of the 1964 Series against the Yankees, had plenty of support in subduing the Red Sox before a hushed crowd of 35,188 in ancient Fenway Park on a raw, overcast afternoon.

Lou Brock, a nemesis for Boston throughout the Series, stole three bases, including two in the fifth inning when the Cards scored two runs for a 4-0 lead, to set a record of seven in one Series.

Gibson, bullishly strong and fast in the early innings, held the Red Sox hitless for four innings before Scott clouted a triple leading off the fifth and scored on a throwing error by Julian Javier.

Boston's second hit, a double by Rico Petrocelli in the eighth, also resulted in a run and Carl Yastrzemski, the hero of Boston's miraculous rise from the ashes of ninth place, singled in the ninth for the last safety.

Gibson's strikeout total of 26 was only five shy of his own Series mark set in 1964 when he won an automobile as the most valuable player. His victory Thursday earned him the same award, plus the Cards' winning share estimated at $9,000.

Lonborg allowed a hit in each of the first two innings but wasn't burned until the third when light-hitting Dal Maxvill hit a booming triple off the centerfield wall. Lonborg retired Gibson on a liner to third and got the dangerous Brock on a pop fly. But Curt Flood singled to center to break the scoreless tie.

More On Series, Page 18

Roger Maris, whose seven runs-batted-in led all hitters in the Series, followed with a ground single to right, moving Flood to third, from where he scored on a wild pitch.

Lonborg, and the Red Sox, however, still were very much in contention when Gibson, with one out in the fifth, drove a pitch high against the centerfield wall above the extreme corner of the bleachers for a home run, his first in Series competition.

Lonborg, laboring now, was touched for a looping single to left by Brock, his first hit in 11 appearances against the Boston ace, whose two victorities had kept the Red Sox alive.

Speedy Lou quickly stole second as catcher Elston Howard dropped the ball and made a clean theft of third on a fourth ball pitch to Flood which Howard also failed to hold. Maris' sacrifice fly to deep right drove in Brock with the second run of the stanza.

Brock's two stolen bases in one inning tied a record shared by many, including Babe Ruth, and silenced the partisan Boston fans.

The lights were turned on prior to the Boston fifth as the weather, mirroring the mood of the crowd, turned somber and gloomy. Scott's long double to the centerfield corner and the Red Sox' subsequent run on the botched-up relay failed to alleviate the fears of the crowd.

The silence was deafening in the sixth as the Cards jumped on a tired, beaten Lonborg for their final three runs. Tim McCarver led off with a liner to right on which Ken Harrelson made a fine diving stab but dropped as he hit the ground. Mike Shannon followed with a scorching one-hopper that knocked Joe Foy to his knees and the third baseman was charged with an error.

It was all over seconds later when Javier, who broke up Lonborg's no-hit bid in the second game with an eighth-inning double, slammed a three-run homer into the left field screen.

The only noise audible as Javier rounded the bases came from a boisterous section behind the Cards' dugout — the wives of the St. Louis players.

Lonborg, struggling to hang on, retired the next two batters before Brock doubled to left. But the Boston righthander, winner of 22 games including the pennant-clincher, reared back and struck out Flood.

He received a tremendous standing ovation from the crowd as he trudged from the mound to be lifted for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the inning.

Brock had one last chance to add insult to injury in the ninth when he drew a one-out walk from relief pitcher Dave Morehead. He wasted no time stealing second as catcher Russ Gibson's throw sailed wide, thereby breaking a record which had sttod since 1909 when Honus Wagner of Pittsburgh stole six to tie a mark set by Jim Slage of the Chicago Cubs two years previously.

Gibson, meanwhile, was poison to the Boston batters, allowing only one baserunner from the fifth through the seventh following Scott's hit. But Petrocelli, whose previous efforts against Gibson had been futile, doubled over third baseman Shannon's head and moved to third on a wild pitch.

Pitching coach Billy Muffett ran to the mound as Gibson went to 2-0 on pinch hitter Dalton Jones. Jones walked and Norm Siebern, another pinch hitter, drove in Petrocelli by forcing Jones at second.

But Gibson knocked off Foy and Mike Andrews and, after yielding a sharp leadoff single to Yastrzemski in the ninth, got Harrelson to bounce into a double play before striking out Scott.

Yastrzemski's single raised his average for the series to .400.

SAFE WITH TRIPLE . . . Red Sox' George Scott stands on third with a triple, while Card third baseman Mike Shannon lands in the dirt as he tries to reach throw.

Bob Gibson 'Does It All'

. . . WINS SECOND CLINCHER

Boston (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, St. Louis' spirited first baseman, broke through the mob surrounding Bob Gibson, grabbed him around the neck and kissed him on the right cheek four times.

"You can do it all . . . you can do it all," Cepeda gushed to Gibson, the man who had just done it all.

What Gison just had done was pitch a three-hitter, hit a home run and fire the Cardinals to a 7-2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox in Thursday's seventh and deciding game of the world series.

The performance gave the 31-year-old right-hander three straight complete game victories in the series, and in the three contests he allowed just three runs, 14 hits and struck out 26—five short of the series record he set in 1964 when the Cardinals beat the New-York Yankees in seven games.

In that series, he also won the seventh game plus one before that and now has won five straight complete games in series play.

His pitching in this year's spectacle was even more amazing because he suffered a broken right leg July 15 and wasn't back on the mound until Sept. 6.

"If you do the same thing each year," Gibson said between sips from a large champagne bottle, "Each time you do it seems bigger than the last. As you get a little older, maybe you cherish these things a little more."

One thing Gibson had to cherish this year that he didn't have in 1964 was the towering 380-foot home run he hit off Jim Lonborg in the fifth inning—The run, incidentally, that turned out to be the inning run since it was St. Louis' third.

It was all the more interesting because of what Gibson was saying before the game.

"I don't hit much anymore," commented the 6-foot-1½, 195-pounder who has been considered one of the better hitting pitchers in the majors.

"I have to concentrate on my pitching. Anyway I'm getting old, my reflexes are slower and my eyes aren't as good."

After the game he had a slightly different explanation.

"If a pitcher gets a reputation for being a pretty good hitter, the other pitchers are as tough on him as they are on everyone else," Gibson said. "All season long they threw me curve balls on the outside, and I can't hit a curve ball outside."

Lonborg, however, made the mistake of throwing his opponent a fast ball.

Links, Southeast Clash Likely For City Title

. . . EAST VISITS COLUMBUS

By RICK AKIN
Prep Sports Writer

It's kind of like Andy Loehr said: "This is an intra-city game. It's going to be a tough ball game."

And so it should with Southeast and Loehr's Lincoln High engaging Friday night at Seacrest Field in what should be the sparkler of the intra-city series this season. Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m.

The two are in similar positions, having lost the kind that are hard to lose last week. The Links slid from third to seventh in the ratings because dropped snapbacks gave Grand Island a 14-7 victory. And Southeast lost to Bellevue, 20-0, in a game "we'd like to play again on a dry field," coach Bill Stephenson said.

"We thought we played a good ball game," he said. "Our defense was real good. We hit real well. Against Lincoln High I know we'd better hold their speed."

ROGER NELSON

Said Loehr: "They've (Southeast) lost twice now to the No. 1 (Bellevue) and No. 3 (Fremont) rated clubs. They should be ready to come storming back. But we want to bounce back, too. We thought we had the game against Grand Island under control. But if we can profit from our mistakes, we're making progress."

Drawing from the gathered comments, both coaches feel it should be a rip-snorter, neither being the favorite.

Elsewhere, East will be back after a week's layoff with a trip to Columbus, a 1-4 team which should give it an opportunity to log in the first victory in the school's varsity history.

The Spartans have been out of it only one, that time in a 54-0 loss to Lincoln High. Their margin in the three other losses have been two touchdowns to Council Bluffs Abraham Lincoln and one each to Hastings and Alliance.

Northeast, still wringing out its jerseys from a 28-0 soaking from Beatrice in sloppy Seacrest last week, has the Saturday game, meeting Hastings at 7:30 p.m. on the 75th and A field. field.

Pius X, still winless, have the toughest foe of the weekend, meeting Boys Town, the No. 2 rated Class A team there.

Cards Put Hammer On Red Sox For Clincher

Boston (AP) — Beautiful:

That was the word heard most often in the St. Louis clubhouse Thursday as the Cardinals celebrated their 7-2 victory over Boston in the seventh and deciding game of the 1967 World Series.

Dal Maxvill, whose triple started the Redbird scoring, sipped champagne and said: "When we get the hammer on a ball club, we're going to win most of the time."

The National League champions got the hammer on the Red Sox with two runs in the third inning. Big Bob Gibson, the winning pitcher, got the third and what proved to be the deciding run himself with a home run at the flagpole in left center field.

Lou Brock, who erased a 58-year-old record when he swiped second in the ninth inning, said he was aware that he could set a record. "When you can do that, you try if you get the chance," he said.

"Boston kept bouncing back in the Series," Brock explained, "but we knew we must win today.

"We haven't had a pressure game since July 24 (when Chicago briefly tied the Cards for the National League lead)," Brock said. "This is the first time since then that we had a 'must' win."

Julian Javier, the St. Louis second baseman, put the game out of reach with a homer to left field in the sixth inning, knocking in three runs.

"I wasn't trying to hit the ball hard," Javier said. "I hit it and it went up there."

Javier said that had the Redbirds' two big guns—Orlando Cepeda and Tim McCarver — hit better in the Series "we could have beat them in five games.

"But we win like this all year — someone picks up someone else," Javier explained.

Red Schoendienst, who has a world championship in his third season as manager, said he never was close to taking Gibson out of the game.

"But if he had walked Ken Harrelson in the ninth, I would have seriously considered it," Schoendienst said. Harrelson hit into a double play and Gibson struck out George Scott to end the game.

Manager Not Ashamed Of Red Sox Showing

Boston (AP)—"We have nothing to be ashamed of—give them credit — they deserve it."

Dick Williams, winding up his rookie season as manager of the Boston Red Sox, saluted the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday after the National League champions won the seventh and deciding game of the world series 7-2 behind Bob Gibson's three-hit pitching.

"Give all the credit in the world to Gibson," Williams said. "He's one helluva pitcher. I would have to say he was the outstanding player in the Series. After all, he beat us three times."

Williams was surrounded by reporters making virtually the only noise in the cemetery-like clubhouse. He praised St. Louis, but had glowing words for his Red Sox.

"I still like this club," he said.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of, nothing at all. This is a young club and we had to work one game harder all season. I'm proud of them all. And we'll be back next year."

Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey, accompanied by Dick O'Connell, vice president and general manager, walked around the clubhouse, patting players on the back and thanking them.

"This has been a great season," Yawkey said. "I have a lot of happy memories."

Boston ace Jim Lonborg, pounded for all seven St. Louis runs in six innings while trying to pitch with only two days rest, and slugger Carl Yastrzemski hid in a closed training room for nearly one-half hour after the game. Finally, Yastrzemski emerged.

"St. Louis is a great ball club—and so are we," Yaz said. "I think if we had another seven-game series it would go down to who had the most rest—Gibson or Lonborg. I'm sorry that Lonborg didn't have it this time.

"In a way, this is a big disappointment, but, in another way, it gives us something to work for next year. I'm still happy the way we bounced back all season—and we'll be back in there next season. Gibson? He's one of the finest."

Lonborg, who hurled a one-hitter and a three-hitter in his first two starts against St. Louis, admitted he didn't have his best stuff, but he tried to dodge any excuses.

"Maybe I wasn't so sharp because I had only two days rest," the 22-game winner during the regular season said. "However, I made some bad pitches. Dick wanted to take me out in the sixth, but I wanted to stay in there. As long as my arm feels good, I want to stay in the game."

Lonborg said that with runners on first and second and the Cardinals in front 4-1 with none out in the sixth he and Williams thought Julian Javier would be bunting.

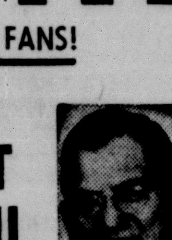
SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW



By Roy C. Feltman

What was the strangest World Series ever played? . . . How about the one in 1960? . . . Did you know in that Series the Yankees scored 55 runs and the Pirates only 27, yet the Pirates won the Series four games to three!

* * *

All of us listen to the World Series on radio or watch it on TV, but did you ever wonder when the very first World Series was ever broadcast? . . . First time the Series was on the air was in 1922 . . . And the first World Series radio announcer in history was a newspaper man — Grantland Rice, who described that 1922 Series over a small network of a few stations.

* * *

Here's one to bring back memories for those of you who were around in the 1920s and 1930s . . . Here are the names of the men who used to broadcast the World Series to us over radio back in those days of long ago . . . Here's the roll-call of old Series announcers . . . Graham McNamee . . . Phillips Carlin . . . Major Andy White . . . Ted Husing . . . Tom Manning . . . Bob Elson . . . Ford Frick . . . Ford Bond . . . Jack Graney . . . Ty Tyson . . . Boake Carter . . . Gabriel Heatter . . . and Red Barber . . . How many of these names do you remember?

* * *

I bet you didn't know . . . That Bourbon Supreme is the only charcoal distilled whiskey in the world. Its good taste justifies its name. Ask for it by name at your favorite package store or tavern.

Top Creighton Officials Send Gibby Plaudits

Omaha (AP) — The president and formed president of Creighton University were among those sending congratulations to St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Bob Gibson, a Creighton alumnus, for his World Series performance.

The telegram, signed by the Very Rev. H. W. Linn, S. J., and the Rev. Carl M. Reinert, S. J., said the administration, faculty, students and alumni of Creighton "join in wishing you many more victories in the years ahead, both on the playing field and in your personal life."

Creighton is planning to welcome Gibson to the campus for a brief visit Tuesday when he returns to Omaha for a Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

—FOUR STARTERS BACK—

Veteran NWU Cagers Open Practice Monday

No fewer than 10 lettermen, including four starters, will be on hand when Nebraska Wesleyan opens basketball practice Monday.

Sounds good on paper, but Irv Peterson, who begins his 17th year as NWU cage boss, knows appearances can be deceiving.

The experience is there all right, but it comes from a team that finished 12-13 last season — only the second losing campaign on Peterson's record.

Only starter lost was center Bill Nasi, but the 6-4 leaper was a one-man gang on the backboards. He holds every Wesleyan rebound record there is.

The position on the low post this year belongs to junior Bob Hahn, 6-6 former Lincoln Northeast prepper who was runner-up to Nasi in rebounding last year as well as carrying a 10.1 scoring average.

The other returning starters are Bob's brother Dick, Kenny Ahl and Kim Busch. Ahl led the team with 21.6 ppg. Peterson will begin the season with senior letterman Bob Vasatka in the other starting role, meaning the Plainsmen will have a three-guard offense.

"This should be a good team," says Peterson. "They have a lot of speed and they'll do a lot of scoring."

Defense, a weak spot last year, probably won't improve much, however.

"When you have three players in there under six feet (Vasatka, Busch and Ahl)," Peterson points out, "you're not going to have a topnotch defensive team."

Perhaps if a couple of gigantic sophomores come through, there won't be any worry about defense and rebounding. Jerry James, at 6-9, is not strong enough to play an entire game, but the Omaha native looked good in spots when he got in late last season.

Mike Zimmerman, at 6-10, still has a long way to go, but as Peterson says, "when you have someone in there that big, you have something in your favor."

The other returning lettermen are Jerry Motz, Terry Monk, Keith Maurer, Steve Carlson and Bryce Doebele. None figure too prominently in Peterson's plans and some may give way to soph hopefuls Tom Brown, Scott Pfeutze, Walter Zink and the aforementioned Ed James and Zimmerman.

Freshman and assistant coach this year will be Lefty Hixson, a former Plainsman who played on Peterson's 1959 NAIA tourney team. Roger Nannen, last year's assistant, is now cage coach in Wisner.

Spectator's Knife Helps Player Win

Virginia Water, England (AP)—Gary Player went into the semifinals of the Picadilly World Match Play Golf Championship Thursday on a pen-knife produced by a spectator to locate a hole.

Defending champion Player, from South Africa, defeated U.S. Masters champion Gay Brewer after three extra holes in their 36-hole duel.

It ended in a twilight altercation over where the hole should be. A new hole had been cut for Friday's semifinals and the old one filled in.

Brewer argued that the old hole should be used. A spectator produced a pen-knife to open it up.

The American paid for raising the issue. He took a six, while the 32-year-old South African cooly took a par 4 for the match.

Player, who fell three holes behind at the end of the morning round after Brewer fired a 67 at him, is joined in the semifinals by two of America's most successful pros, Arnold Palmer and Bill Casper, and the veteran Peter Thomson of Australia.

Palmer, the all-time leading money winner among U.S. pros, crushed George Knudson of Canada 5 and 4. Casper, the two-time winner of the U.S. Open who lost a playoff to Brewer in the recent Alcan, smothered the off-form Bruce Devlin of Australia 9 and 8. Thomson, five-time winner of the British Open, came from five holes down for a 1-up victory over Roberto deVincenzo of Argentina, the reigning British Open king.

Big Eight Grid Workouts

Colorado

Boulder, Colo. (AP) — Colorado University's Buffaloes stressed execution and timing both offensively and defensively Thursday in light contact drills.

The undefeated CU club meets another undefeated Big Eight football foe, Missouri, in a game Saturday at Folsom Field.

Coach Eddie Crowder said aside from slotback John Farler, his club is in good physical condition. He said a sophomore, Gary Kuxhaus, will probably see action in Farler's spot Saturday.

Missouri

Columbia, Mo. (AP) — Coach Dan Devine scratched Roger Wehrli from the travel list shortly before Missouri's football squad flew to Denver Thursday, en route to a showdown game with unbeaten Colorado at Boulder Saturday.

Wehrli, the Tigers' only veteran defensive back, has been undergoing treatment for an ulcer and has missed Missouri's last two games. He returned to practice Tuesday but Devine said he has not yet regained full strength.

Iowa State

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State's football team Thursday wrapped up preparations for Saturday's game here against Kansas State.

The team will hold a light workout in the stadium Friday.

Reserve offensive end Neal Waddington will be sidelined for several days with a sprained ankle suffered in Wednesday afternoon's practice. Coach Clay Stapleton said otherwise, the squad is in good physical condition.

Thursday's 85-minute drill concentrated on offensive and defensive goal-line work, play review and a 30-minute kicking drill.

The only change in the starting lineup, said Stapleton, will be sophomore Greg Dukstein, who moved into the split end slot in place of Wayne Perry.

Kansas

Lawrence, Kan. (AP)—Kansas Coach Pepper Rodgers was undecided about the starting flanker but all other positions were settled as Kansas went through final drills Thursday in preparation for unbeaten Nebraska here Saturday.

Rodgers said he hadn't decided whether to start Don Shanklin or John Jackson at flanker. Sophomore Willie McDaniel will start at middle guard in place of Emery Hicks, suspended for the Nebraska game.

Neither Rodgers nor Hicks would elaborate on the reason for the suspension of the 224-pound Hicks. Hicks said "the suspension is justified and I hope to be back next week if they'll take me."

Kansas State

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State will be the favorite for the first time in several years against Iowa State at Ames, and a welcome home party is planned Saturday night—win or lose.

The squad will leave Friday. Coach Vince Gibson cut Thursday's drill short, "so the players will have their legs under them Saturday."

Oklahoma

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma football coach Chuck Fairbanks suited up a full team for the first time this week Thursday after a bout with a virus infection felled several key players.

Defensive tackle Dick Paaso, the final Sooner to regain his feet, joined those on the playing field for the last heavy drill in preparation for the OU-Texas clash but Fairbanks said he would see only limited action.

Bob Stephenson, OU's outstanding defensive halfback, also will be in the Oklahoma lineup for the game in the Cotton Bowl. He has been out of action since injuring his ankle and instep Aug. 30.

"I think we've gone over everything we'll need for the ball game and I think we will make good accounting for ourselves," the coach said.

After a brief workout Friday, the squad will fly to Ft. Worth to spend the night and travel on to Dallas Saturday.

Oklahoma State

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State University returned to the practice field Thursday and coach Phil Cutchin said his first unit looked more like a good football team than at any time this year.

Cutchin's first string has been idle since losing to the University of Texas 19-0 last Saturday.

The Cowboys spent Thursday concentrating on punting and punt coverage. But two other points caught Cutchin's eye.

"I thought our pass receiving was outstanding today," the Cowboy coach said.

Quail hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour before sunset. All other game may be taken from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

The following applies to any point in Nebraska that is due north or due south of each of the cities and towns. John Prasch Selected To Become New Superintendent

JOHN PRASCH

John Prasch, 48, of Minneapolis, Minn., has been selected to become the new superintendent of the Lincoln Public Schools, board president Ed Copple announced here Thursday.

Executive director of the Upper Midwest Regional Educational Laboratory, Prasch will be nominated for election at next Tuesday's special board meeting.

He is the "number one choice of each member of the school board," Copple reported.

The new superintendent will assume his duties here Dec. 1, replacing Supt. Dr. Steven Watkins whose resignation is to be effective not later than Dec. 31.

Watkins, who served in the post 17 years, will be given a professional leave of absence for the month of December, according to Copple.

Prasch was superintendent of schools in Racine, Wis., for seven years before he was named director of the educational laboratory last year. A consolidated school system, the Racine district enrolls some 30,000 students.

UMREL is a federally funded project to bridge the gap between research and classroom practice.

He also has served as Bellflower, Calif., high school principal, athletic director and coach at a Racine high school, and teacher and coach at Sycamore, Ill., and Marion, Iowa.

Prasch received his B.S. degree in mathematics and physical education from Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and his M.S. degree in educational administration from the University of Iowa in Iowa City. He has taken graduate work at Colorado, Chicago, Southern California, Northwestern and Harvard universities.

He will receive $26,000 per year in the Lincoln position, the board president said.

As superintendent at Racine, Prasch promoted a successful referendum consolidating 27 separate school districts in the metropolitan and suburban areas. He also gained approval of two bond issues totaling $20 million to fund a long-term building plan.

During his tenure, nine buildings—three elementary schools, three junior highs, one senior high and a central office facility—were planned and/or constructed.

Two of the building plans received citations at the architects' exhibit of the national convention of school superintendents.

The school district undertook and cooperated with numerous research and experimentation programs, spearheaded by Prasch.

In 1966, Racine was named by the National Education Association for its "Pacemaker" award for Wisconsin.

He has published four articles on projects he has worked with including overhauling curriculum, designing buildings and solving local educational problems.

Apparent Vengeance Stabbing Fails

Philadelphia (AP) — A prisoner charged with stabbing a pretty 18-year-old girl to death was stabbed five times Thursday by a fellow prisoner who apparently considered himself an avenger, according to prison officials.

Prisons Supt. Edward J. Hendrick identified the knife-wielder as William J. Barnes, 31, and said, "It seems that Barnes considers himself the girl's avenger."

Hendrick said Barnes apparently had been brooding over the girl's death since reading it in a newspaper and had cut out a picture of the victim, Sareta Bryson of West Philadelphia, and pasted it on his cell wall in Holmesburg prison.

Not Bad Hurt

The victim of Thursday's attack, George B. Goins, 27, who is charged with murder in Friday night's slaying was not seriously injured. He was treated in the prison clinic, Hendrick said.

Goins was stabbed in a maximum security, psychiatric section of the prison.

Goins was in a cellblock corridor when his attacker lunged at him suddenly and stabbed him in the neck, back, chest and arm, police said.

Bed Slat Used

The weapon was a seven-inch-long metal slat from a jail bed which had been filed to a point, apparently by scraping it on the rough cell floor, they explained.

Goins, father of three, was arrested by police after surrendering to his minister Saturday. Barnes is awaiting trial on charges of shooting a policeman during a burglary attempt last November.

Miss Bryson was slain a few hours before she was to have been a bridesmaid at her best friend's wedding.

She was buried Wednesday in her bridesmaid dress.

Three Nebraska School Yearbooks Selected Winners

By The Associated Press

Three Nebraska high school publications have been judged winners in the 33rd annual yearbook critique and contest staged by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association of Columbia University, New York.

Lincoln and Grand Island schools won first place, which is one notch below the highest honors awarded, and Norfolk won a second place.

The Lincoln High School "Links," won a first in the offset yearbook division for senior high schools of 1,501 to 2,500 enrollment, and Grand Island High School "Purple and Gold" won a first in the category for offset yearbooks published by schools of 901 to 1,500 enrollment.

Norfolk High School's "The Milestone" won a second place for offset yearbooks published in schools with enrollments of 601-900.

More Soviets To Train In Military

New York Times Service

Moscow — The Soviet Union announced and enacted into law Thursday an extension of military service and training to greater numbers of citizens, including high school boys, but coupled it with a one-year cut in the term of compulsory service.

The defense minister, Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, put the new measure before the Supreme Soviet, or parliament, in a speech calling for a higher degree of military preparedness. The fault, the marshal declared, lies with the United States.

He said: "The ruling circles of the U.S., behind the screen of talk of peace and cooperation, are stepping up military preparations against the Soviet Union and other countries of socialism that are creating dangerous hotbeds of war in various regions of the world."

The defense minister singled out Vietnam and the Middle East as such "hotbeds."

"It is only a strongly growing military might, brought to the highest level, that can cool the bellicose ardor of aggressors and guarantee our country against possible hazards."

Earlier Thursday, the Supreme Soviet adopted a budget for 1968 that increased military spending by 15%, from 14.5 billion rubles ($16.09 billion) to 16.7 billion rubles ($18.5 billion).

The new draft law, adopted unanimously and without question by the 1,517 deputies, introduces compulsory preliminary military training to all secondary schools for the last two years of the 10-year course.

Grechko did not say what form the training would take, but the education minister, Mikhail A. Prokofyev, told the deputies that military officers would be attached to secondary school faculties to provide it.

Progressive Win In Synod Election May Produce Liberal Catholic Stand

Vatican City (AP) — Progressives scored a victory in the Roman Catholic synod's first election Thursday, choosing a commission that is expected to draft a liberal Church stand on theology.

The bishops elected eight of their number to the commission as opponents of the synod's secrecy rules gained what was described as a "breakthrough," by the Rev. Edward Heston, of South Bend, Ind., the synod's English-language briefing officer.

The eight commission members chosen by the 185 synod bishops present will be joined by four papal appointees to be announced later.

The group's job will be to synthesize five days of debate in the synod on the controversial issue of doctrine. The issue includes the theological upheaval in the church following the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council and what an often-denounced synod document calls "dangers to the faith."

None of the eight is a member of the Roman Curia, or church administration, which contains a number of conservative prelates eager to denounce doctrinal errors.

The eight are Franjo Cardinal Seper of Yugoslavia, an advocate of dialogue with atheists, who gained the most votes, 140; Bishop Carlo Colombo of Milan, the Pope's personal theologian; Bishop John Wright of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Julius Cardinal Dopfner of Germany; Pierre Cardinal Veuillot of Paris; Bishop Marcos McGrath of Panama; Leo Jozef Cardinal Suenens of Belgium, and Archbishop Neofito Edelby of the Syrian Melchite church.

OEO Workers Protest Exclusion

New York Times Service

Washington—Hundreds of employes of the Office of Economic Opportunity spent their lunch period Thursday at a sidewalk meeting called to protest their exclusion from a pay raise bill for government workers.

The action Wednesday night was at least the second signal from the House that the OEO's future is in jeopardy.

Rep. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., offered the amendment to exclude OEO employes from the pay raise bill. His entire argument was directed at the number of OEO employes in the higher pay grades, but his amendment was a blanket exclusion of all government service (GS) grades.

Dominick Garofalo, president of the OEO local of the American Federation of Government Employes, who called the noon meeting, said: "There are plenty of GS2s standing on this sidewalk. There are plenty of GS3s. A lot of people may not know how much a GS2 makes. Well, it's $3,925 a year—right above the poverty line."

Radio City Girls To Resume Work

New York (AP) — The city's most glamorous picket line dispersed Thursday and the Radio City Rockettes and ballerinas prepared to return to the great stage of the Music Hall, after settlement of their 27-day strike.

It was the first walkout in the 35-year history of the Music Hall, which bills itself as "the nation's showplace."

Lincoln Chamber Directors Vote To Back Housing Code

A special session of the board of directors of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Thursday resulted in official chamber backing of the proposed city minimum housing ordinance.

But the resolution did not pass without controversy.

A relatively lengthy discussion, by chamber standards, resulted from a motion by Bob Simon, president of Ben Simon & Sons and first vice president-elect of the chamber, that the ". . . chamber take a positive position favoring minimum housing."

'Lack Of Use'

The discussion revolved around a statement by Don Parker, immediate past president of the chamber and president of the Security Mutual Life Insurance Co., that "the lack of use of existing statutes doesn't mean a weakness in the statutes."

Parker elaborated by saying his company had pledged financial support to efforts aimed at improving substandard housing problems. He said he did not object to ending inadequate housing but to creating what he called an unnecessary law.

City Councilman Ervin Peterson responded by saying there is no question that the city currently has the power to declare certain conditions substandard or a nuisance.

'Take Action'

"The one thing it (the code) would allow us to do that we can't do now," he said, "is to take action on unsafe and unsanitary conditions."

During the discussion, Tom Pansing, president of the Nebraska National Life Insurance Co., raised the question of the advisability of the chamber taking a stand on the subject at all.

He said any positive action could be a hindrance to the cause by contributing to propaganda that the measure is setting "the big guy against the little guy."

Dissenting Vote

The 21 members present were allowed to vote on the issue. Don Parker cast the one dissenting vote.

Also receiving unanimous approval was a proposal for "full chamber support of the Airport Authority's efforts to reverse the Civil Aeronautics Board's recent decision to exclude Lincoln air service needs from the Omaha service case; and in addition to urge support for opposition (to have Lincoln's service needs heard at this time) from the governor's office, State Department of Aeronautics, Nebraska congressional delegation and Frontier and United Airlines."

The proposal seeks to reverse the CAB's decision, construed to have a long range detrimental effect on Lincoln air traffic and to force more local air travelers to board their planes in Omaha.

Five To Be Arraigned On Narcotics Charges

Wichita, Kan. (AP)—Five persons indicted on federal narcotics charges Sept. 28 will be arraigned Oct. 20 in U.S. District Court here.

The five are charged with illegal possession, processing and interstate transportation of $67,200 worth of marijuana.

The indictment named Kay Benjamin Blecha, Boulder, Colo; Thomas Elton Patchett Jr. Port Plinton, Ohio; Terry Vance Harding, Rolla, Mo.; Stephen Francis Bisbee, Fairhaven, Mass., and Barbara Jean Berger, University City, Mo.

Rented Van

The five were arrested July 22, in a rented van on U.S. 36. Authorities said the truck was carrying 336 pounds of marijuana.

The indictment charges that the marijuana was harvested on a farm owned by Ben Blecha, father of Kay Benjamin Blecha, in Republic County, Kan.

It is alleged that the group transported the marijuana to Byron, Neb., where it was dried in a laundromat and returned to Republican County, where it was stored in an abandoned schoolhouse.

The group is charged with making two round trips to Byron in order to process a portion of the marijuana.

Semi-Trailers, Railroad Car Might Be Way To Ship Cattle

Sidney (AP) — The Union Pacific Railroad planned to load two semi-trailers loaded with cattle onto a trailer car here Friday for the railroad's first test of this method of shipping live cattle.

A. J. Lien, general manager of the Union Pacific Motor Freight Co. of Omaha, said the cattle will be hauled 200 miles to Karney.

The railroad's general livestock agent, W. F. Petersen of Omaha, said low-slung double deck trailers will be used and because of their low center of gravity, little trouble is anticipated from the side-to-side swaying of the train.

The railroad officials said the new system will make it possible to haul more cattle on one trailer car than in two conventional live stock cars.

They also noted less handling of cattle will be required in the movement from ranch to market.

The officials said more tests of the system will be made.

The trailers and the cattle are owned by Stockman's Cattle Co. of North Platte.

Petition Drive Starts To Return Property Tax

Omaha (AP)—An Omaha man announced Thursday that he has begun a petition campaign aimed at eliminating the state sales and income taxes and reinstating the property tax as the source of support for state government.

John M. Graff, 43, a tire wholesaler, said he had received legal advice and has been told there is still time for an initiative petition which would allow the voters to change the State Constitution.

However, Graff said he was told it is too late for a referendum repeal of the sales and income levies.

Graff indicated his drive has just begun and it is too early to tell what success it might have.

Iowa Democrats Hire Journalist

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Dwight McCormack, an Associated Press writer for 37 years in Nebraska and Iowa, has been named public relations director for the Iowa Democratic State Central Committee, it was announced Thursday.

Democratic State Chairman Clark R. Rasmussen said McCormack would work under his direction preparing news releases on the party's activities and programs.

McCormack retired recently as photo editor of the Associated Press bureau in Des Moines. Before that, he spent 15 years as a statehouse and legislative reporter.

He is a Nebraska native and graduate of the University of Nebraska School of Journalism.

Nomination Confirmed

Washington (UPI) — The Senate confirmed the nomination of former Harvard Law School Dean Edwin N. Griswold as solicitor general to succeed Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall.

$1,000 Taken In Purse Theft

Nebraska City (UPI)—An investigation was being conducted here Thursday into a $1,000 robbery of the Adolph Stoltenberg home here Wednesday.

Mrs. Stoltenberg said she was outside the house and found the money missing when she returned. The cash was in a purse behind some clothes in a closet.

The empty purse was found in the house.

2 Men Sentenced In Antioch Holdup Seek New Trials

Rushville (UPI) — A motion for a new trial was filed in District Court here Thursday by Max Gould, 47, of Lincoln, and James Williams, 44, of Grand Island.

Both were sentenced Monday by Judge Robert Moran to terms at the state penal complex for the July 6 robbery of an 87-year-old Antioch, storekeeper.

Williams received 10 years and Gould 7 years for taking $15 in a robbery of Mike Dafney, who was also assaulted in the holdup.

The motion on file Thursday said the sentence was contrary to law and the evidence submitted. The motion also said the court failed to give proper consideration to facts and circumstances of the case and to the pre-sentence investigation submitted by the probation officer.

Judge Moran took the matter under consideration.

Du Pont Says Improper Use Of Spray Fatal

Wilmington, Del. (UPI) — The Du Pont Co. warned Thursday that improper use of an aerosol spray used for frosting cocktail glasses has caused at least seven deaths in the United States.

Du Pont issued the warning about the danger of deliberately inhaling or "sniffing" the vapors or liquids on behalf of itself and several other manufacturers of the product.

The statement followed the latest deaths of an 11-year-old girl in Greenwich, Conn., and of a student at Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pa.

The firm said there was a "growing fad among many young people to seek intoxicating or psychadelic effects" by inhaling fumes from the product.

Stocks Decline In Dull Trading

New York (AP) — The stock market Thursday took a stiff loss for the third straight session in dull Columbus Day trading.

Semiholiday conditions prevailed on Wall Street because banks and many other financial institutions were closed.

Volume was only 7.77 million shares compared with 11.23 million Wednesday.

Analysts said the list showed technical weakness as it fell sharply through the anticipated support level of 920 in the Dow Jones industrial average, above which it closed Wednesday.

The Dow industrials lost 7.05 at 913.20.

The market had a mild decline at the outset, remained firmly at the lower level in the morning, and did not expand its loss until late afternoon. Of 1,463 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 851 fell and 376 rose. Highs for the year totaled 24 and lows 51.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 2.3 to 33.1 with industrials down 4.4, rails off .4 and utilities down .9 to another low for the year.

The further decline in the utilities reflected once again the competition of high-yielding bonds which have reflected the rising interest rates and offered stiff competition to stocks in the minds of yield-conscious investors.

Seven of the 15 most-active stocks declined, six advanced and two were unchanged.

Adams-Millis was the most active stock, down 8⅝ at 65½ on 85,800 shares.

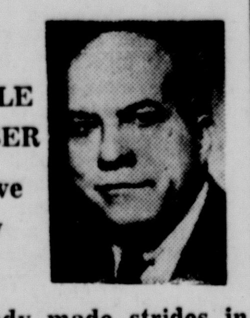
The New York Stock Exchange index fell 33 cents to $53.20.

Prices were mostly lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 4.73 million compared with 5.08 million Wednesday. The exchange's index fell 12 cents to $22.68.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Investors Advised To Be Vigilant, But Not Neurotic

By Merryle S. Rukeyser



MERRYLE RUKEYSER

Excessive Worry

In this topsy turvy world of rapid flux, investors should be vigilant, but not neurotic.

As evidence of excessive worry, a California reader hesitates to buy a "no load" fund with a good record, because a Swiss investment company owns 19% of its shares.

There are several ways of appraising this fact. If a sophisticated group likes a fund, that is favorable. But evidently the reader is worried about what would happen if the big holder should suddenly unload his stock. Unless the foreign company got into financial difficulty, it would be unlikely to sell. irresponsibly and depress the market. An open end fund retires holdings on request at its prevailing net asset value.

If it becomes necessary to sell from the portfolio to get cash to pay off holders, the small size of the fund makes it unlikely that it would break the market. If it did, the chief sufferer would be the seller—and not the investors who stay with the fund. The long term value of the fund would depend on the quality of the securities in the investment portfolio — and not in short term fluctuations in prices.

Another reader, interested in "no load" funds, reports that a broker told him that in falling markets no stock peddlars will be pushing such funds, whereas there will be aggressive selling by load funds. So what? In effect, the broker was really saying that the fund with a load has an advantages because even in hard times it will hunt up new suckers with fresh money, but since there is no leverage factor in an open-end fund, this is of little moment to those who stick with the fund.

No Favorites

This column has no favorites, but alerts the reader to neglected intangibles and services, which vendors are not actively touting. Among the underpublicized categories are "no load" open end funds, closed end funds quoted at a discount, common trust funds, revocable living trusts, term life insurance and annuities.

Salesmen, who motivate the inert, are worthy of their hire. Some of the funds with a load have done so well that they quickly absorb the high cost of ringing doorbells. But, where other factors are equal, the absence of an entry fee is an inducement. A closed end fund at a discount has what is in effect a negative load.

Q.—An Abilene, Texas reader writes that a broker told him that closed end companies selling at a discount, such as Tri-Continental, will always sell at a discount.

A.—Don't fool around with financial men of little knowledge whose judgment may be influenced by the size of their commission. The broker makes only the regular Stock Exchange commission on closed end funds, and this is but a fraction of the fee for selling a fund with a load. I have no respect for vendors who won't tell the whole truth, irrespective of whether they can make a fast buck.

A study of the Lehman Corporation, one of the leading closed end funds, shows that at times the stock was quoted at a discount and at other times at a premium, and that there is no correlation between the occurrence of premiums and discounts and the intrinsic results of investment management.

Q. — A Sacramento, Calif. reader wants a retirement income of $1,000 a month. He has already made strides in investing on his own but asks about investment counsel service. He says he does not have time to study the stock market.

A.—You can get a list of counsellors from Investment Counsel Association of America, 49 Park Avenue, New York. Most firms like funds upward of $100,000 and charge half of one per cent of the principal supervised. Among the old line houses, Trainer, Wortham & Company, 515 Madison Avenue, New York, will handle funds as small as $25,000.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Soybeans Drop In Grain Mart

Chicago (AP)— Soybeans futures declined up to 1⅜ cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, influenced by the movement of millions of bushels to market.

Oats prices closed higher, but other grains closed on an irregular tone.

Harvesting of soybeans has been increasing daily for nearly two weeks and swung into high gear in Illinois, the country's largest soybean producing state, this week.

Wheat futures moved ahead 1 cent a bushel and corn up to ⅞ of a cent before a wave of liquidation in both pits sent prices lower.

At the close of grain trade, wheat was ¼ of a cent a bushel higher to ¼ lower, December 1.53⅜-½; corn was unchanged to ½ higher, December 1.13¾-⅝; oats were ⅛ to ⅞ higher, December 71⅛ cents; rye was ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, December 1.18½ and soybeans were ¼ to 1⅜ lower, November 2.63¾-⅝.

Contractor Hires Women To Work Iowa Highway

Sioux City, Iowa (AP) — A road contractor has hired 20 women to help pave a stretch of interstate highway in western Iowa because he couldn't find men to take the jobs.

Veteran State Highway Department employes said they cannot recall women ever being hired before to do road paving work.

The women are getting the same pay as men — a minimum of $2 an hour — and they consider the work no more difficult than harvesting crops, a spokesman for the firm, Western Contracting Corp. of Sioux City said.

The women, from the Mondamin, Iowa, area and Indian reservations in northeastern Nebraska, are tying together steel reinforcing rods before the concrete is poured.

'Rehiring' Of Fired Employe Is Supported

A trial examiner's decision Thursday recommended to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) that a Lincoln firm be directed to rehire and pay back wages to an employe fired from a job at the University of Nebraska last winter.

The complaint against Reinhardt Brothers Plumbing and Heating, Inc., of Lincoln was filed with the NLRB by Glen L. Eberspacher, the employe involved.

The complaint arose around a job at the new university dormitory complex. Reinhardt Brothers claimed Eberspacher was fired because of laziness on the job, and because he was causing friction between the foreman and other workers.

The decision by trial examiner Phil Saunders, however, held Eberspacher was a productive employe and there was evidence of animosity by the company toward the union.

The decision, if enforced as recommended, will direct the company to cease discouraging membership in the union and offer back pay and reinstatement to Eberspacher, a member of Plumbers and Steamfitters Local No. 88 of Lincoln.

Long-Sought Escapee Gets Court Delay

Salt Lake City (AP) — A man wanted by Nebraska authorities for escaping from a mental hospital 28 years ago has been given time to file a motion in court.

Gov. Calvin Rampton said Wednesday he would take no action in the case of Jose Rodrigues, 64, also known as Jose Rades, until the man's attorney goes to court for a determination of whether he is being held illegally.

Rodrigues, a laborer who lives in Layton, Utah, is serving a 90-day jail sentence for driving without a license.

A fingerprint check turned up the Nebraska case. Rodrigues had been convicted of murder and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

His attorney, Maxwell Bentley, said Rodrigues has spent the last six years in Layton as a farm worker and before that worked in Idaho.

Rampton, in granting time to file the court motion, observed that the extradition request appeared to be in order because the papers were properly filed, Rodrigues admitted being the wanted man, and was under Nebraska jurisdiction at the time of the escape.

Washington (UPI) — A Washington (UPI) — Presidents Johnson and Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico are expected to announce a formal agreement on mutual fishing rights when they meet here Oct. 26 and 27. Kansas-Nebraska Company Acquires Curtis Gas Firm

Hastings (UPI) — Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co., Inc., announced Thursday the acquisition of Curtis Gas Co., a privately-owned retailer of liquefied petroleum gas (lpg) in Curtis for an undisclosed amount of Kansas-Nebraska common stock.

The acquisition becomes effective Nov. 1. It is Kansas-Nebraska's fifth acquisition since Aug. 15, and its fourth recent purchase of an lpg company.

Curtis Gas, which sells lpg largely to rural customers for domestic and irrigation uses, reported sales in 1966 of more than 900,000 gallons of lpg.

Thomas Creigh, Jr., president of Kansas-Nebraska, said the latest acquisition "marks a further extension of our program of diversification into allied fields of activity."

Kansas-Nebraska, with assets in excess of $96 million, is primarily a marketer of natural gas, serving wholesale and retail customers in a wide area of western Kansas, Nebraska, northeastern Colorado and eastern Wyoming.

Present management and key personnel of the newly-acquired company will be retained, the announcement said.

Man, Mouse Cells Blended Durably; Paths May Unfold

New York Times Service

Washington — Scientists have reported producing the first durable hybrids between the cells of man and another species.

The hybrids are colonies of living cells which take part of their inheritance from mice and part from cells of human origin.

Aggregations of these man-mouse cells have been kept alive as long as six months in the laboratory. They are believed to be the first in which durable hybrids have been produced between human cells and those of another species.

Scientists see the hybrids as far more than laboratory curiosities.

The cells are expected to aid research in a realm of human genetics study that has been hardly touched: the mapping of gene locations on human chromosomes. Genes determine hereditary characteristics. Each living cell has many thousands of genes situated on thread-like structures called chromosomes.

Human cells have 46 chromosomes. For most of these there has been no mapping at all. Yet an understanding of gene locations on the chromosomes would be a vital help in understanding genetic defects and, ultimately perhaps, in correcting them.

Much interest has been expressed in recent years in the future possibility of direct attack on genetic defects in man by correcting abnormalities of the genes themselves.

How Viruses Infect

The research on hybrid cells is also expected to expand man's knowledge of the specific manner in which viruses infect living cells. It is possible that something in the hybrid cells, conferred by their mouse ingredients, prevents successful infection or that something essential from the human is lacking.

The hybrids are produced by allowing cells of the two species to grow on the same nutrients in a laboratory tissue culture flask. The hybrids contain almost all of the mouse chromosomes and some of the human chromosomes.

For reasons that are still unknown the successful hybrids lost most of the human chromosomes — sometimes 75% and in other experiments more than 95%.

The research was done at New York University School of Medicine by Dr. Mary C. Weiss and Dr. Howard Green. Their report is published in the latest issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

December Draft Quota Is 18,200; All Go To Army

Washington (UPI) — A December draft call for 18,200 men was ordered Thursday by the Defense Department. All of the inductions for the remainder of the year will be for the Army.

The December draft call was 3,800 fewer than the 22,000 inductions scheduled for November. The December quota compared with 12,100 in December, 1966, and 40,200 in December, 1965, when the buildup for Vietnam was in full swing.

October's draft call was 17,000 and 25,000 were inducted in September.

New York (AP) — Life magazine called editorially Thursday for a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam except for its southern provinces adjacent to the demilitarized zone.

Life, which hitherto has supported the bombing policy, said the weightiest reason for stopping bombing without preconditions to Hanoi "is to recapture support for the U.S. presence and commitment in Vietnam."

Extension Set For Rickover

Washington (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the peppery head of the Navy's nuclear propulsion program, has been asked to stay on for his fourth two-year extension and he has agreed, the Defense Department announced Thursday night.

Without such a special request, the 67-year-old Rickover would have to retire next Jan. 1. His new tour will run until January, 1970.

Rickover is director of the Naval Reactors Division of the AEC as well as deputy commander for nuclear propulsion for the Navy's Ships Systems Command.

Rickover is a key developer of the nuclear-powered submarine.

Licenses To Expire In 13 Days

There are 13 more days in which to obtain driver's licenses before the Oct. 31 deadline.

To avoid the confusion over birth dates and the cost of the license which varies according to that date, drivers have been urged not to mail in for their licenses.

According to Darrell Blank, Lancaster Coutny motor vehicle department chief, about half of those being received here have had to be returned for errors in the amounts included for the fee which may vary from $1.50 to $6.

Must Renew

All drivers must renew their licenses this year, and those issued during the two-month renewal period this year must be renewed again within a 60-day period prior to the licensee's birthday in the first year that his age is divisible by four beginning Jan. 1, 1968.

In other words, the license being obtained between Sept. 1 and Oct. 31 of this year will be renewed after Jan. 1, 1968, on its expiration date—the individual's birthday—only after the individual has successfully passed a driver examination within 60 days preceding the birthday.

Any individual who fails to renew his license within the 60-day period this year will be required to take the examination before acquiring his license.

Licenses may be obtained from the motor vehicle department in the basement of the courthouse from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.
